Lake View LOOKS FORWARD

Lake View lifts high her eyes and mind to the future with the predominant purpose of securing in her offspring feelings of stability, independence, and happiness.

She fully realizes that this problem is not, however, one which may be solved quickly or be coped with indifferently and half-heartedly. She agrees to acknowledge that she must study the human reactions of her students so that she may be able to meet the many situations which shall arise in the lives of all of her young people. Lake View knows all this and she has begun to do something about it with a spirit typical of greatness.

She has opened wide her portals to the many innovations of a new era destined to become her most profitable and encouraging, an era which is disclosing new vistas on her horizon. Her statuesque structure looms high in a daring and defying manner to tell the world of her challenge to all obstacles—obstacles which shall be conquered and which shall serve as model forerunners to other defeatable ones. However, most important of all, she remembers her experiences of the past many years, and is willing to reflect upon them carefully and logically to conquer that realm which lies beyond.

Cultivation of Character and Leadership through Scholarship and Service

Youth realizes that it must soon take its place in the adult world of tomorrow, and thus takes advantage of its opportunities presented today in striving to reach this end. Induction into the National Honor Society stimulates the student to succeed in all phases of school life. This organization, newly established at Lake View, provides the incentive for its members to strive for good scholarship, service to the school, leadership, and character.

Good Citizenship---Essential to Democratic Thinking

The youth of today are the citizens of tomorrow; therefore, the training of her students for good citizenship is one of the most important objectives that Lake View strives to attain. This training begins in the division rooms where the students first assemble. It is here that these future citizens receive a basic foundation in the ways of a democratic society by electing their division room officers and through them the students are given a chance to voice their opinions in matters relating to school affairs.

New Ideas Readily Accepted at Lake View

The crowning of the May Queen, attended by her Maid-of-Honor, Ladies-in-Waiting, and her court, has now become an annual event. This beautiful presentation symbolizes Youth—that gay phase in our lives when we are the most carefree and fun-loving. Youth also has its serious side, for it realizes that soon it must take up the challenge of maturity. It is then that Youth seriously contemplates upon the future. There is no problem which seems to be insurmountable; no project that cannot be accomplished. Youth looks ahead with undauntable courage to a world of freedom and respect for one's fellow men.

"Peace on Earth--Good Will Towards Men"

This holiday season, a beautiful Christmas tree, adorned the center foyer of our school. This tree reminded the students of the blessings of living in a country where freedom of religion is permitted, and represented the student's faith and belief in a Christian way of life. This beautiful tree is symbolic of Lake View's teaching to her students of understanding and tolerance, stressing that the practice of the "Golden Rule" is a step forward towards lasting peace.

A New Spirit Opens a Vista of Athletic Glory

A new era has dawned on Lake View's athletic horizon.

Gone are the days of wistful reflection upon past glories; the future awaits, and, with it, come new conquests, new honors to be won. An impetus was given to this development last year with the reorganization of the athletic department and a new coaching staff for the football team. Immediately the entire school took up the challenge; everywhere school spirit flared anew. Lake View was on the march—a drive that would not rest until every possible goal had been won.

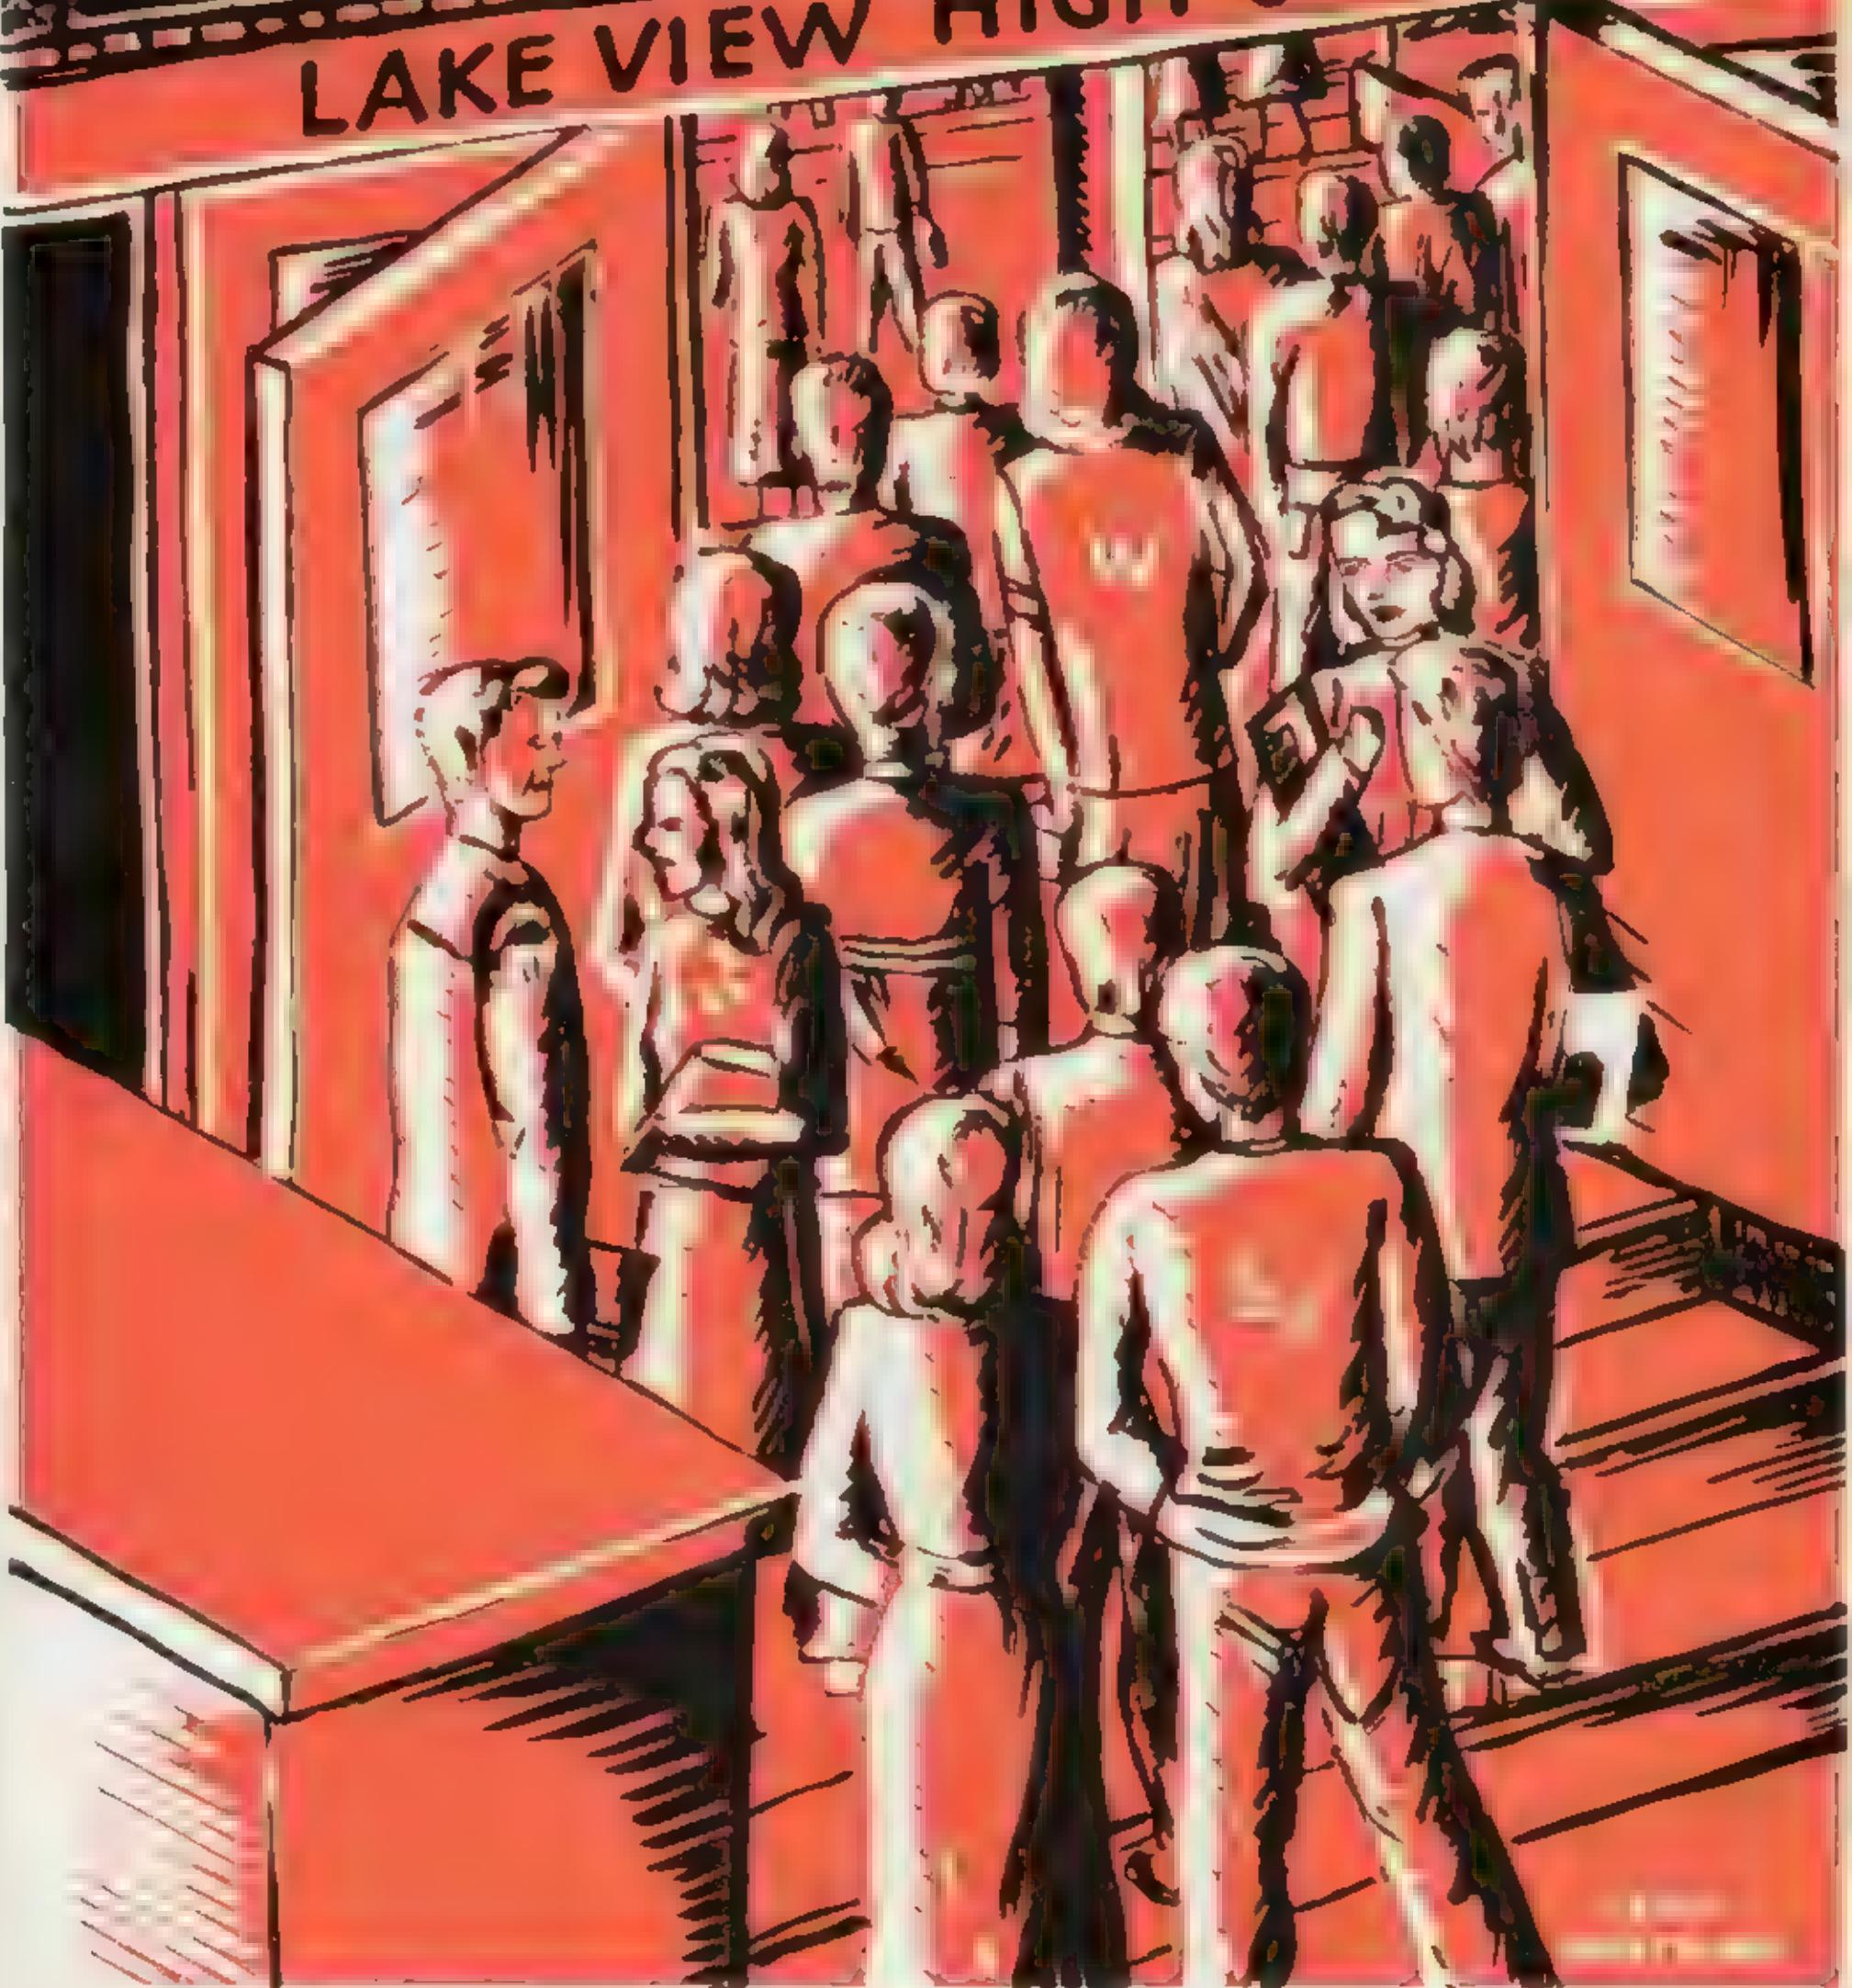

Another First for Lake View

In her eagerness to insert into its curriculum any new course of study which affects the daily lives of her students and prepares them for the future, Lake View has added a special course in Radio and Television. Special instructors from the American School of Television aid in the teaching of acting techniques, script writing, stage settings, and the mechanical and practical aspects of radio and television.

The School

The justification for Lake View's existence is the knowledge transmitted to the students who pass through her classrooms. All other phases of her educational program are secondary to this primary and basic duty. As a member of a nationwide system of public schools dedicated to the development of a well-informed citizenry able to cope with the complexities of modern life, Lake View has never lost sight of her goal. She has never allowed herself to sink to the level of a mere social center, but has maintained the standards of an institution of learning. However, she is a far cry from an ivory tower for scholars rooted in sacred tradition far from the paths of progress. Realizing education is a vital process, necessarily practical, Lake View has modified and expanded her courses to meet the needs of this age. As these needs grow and alter, Lake View shall continue to change and expand to better meet the responsibilities the future brings.

LAKE VIEW HIGH SCHOOL

The recognition and fostering of differences in abilities, talents, and personalities of our school population as well as providing maximum and adequate opportunities for all to reach as high an educational level as possible has been and will continue to be the over-all aim of Lake View High School

Education for all is axiomatic and fundamental, but has to be qualified with equality of opportunity and not identity. In the final analysis education is the careful organization and guidance of natural growth. The school can only seek out the germ, nourish it to grow and encourage it under the best possible conditions. This is a cooperative project requiring perfect understanding between students and teachers, between the student body and the administrative personnel, and the absolute confidence of parents and community in these policies

During the past year we have made progress in the accomplishment of our purposes. We shall continue to direct our efforts toward maintaining standards of highest educational achievement in the years ahead

J. Franklin Boyd

Principal

They Direct Our Progress

Lake View High School, having just closed three-quarters of a century of glorious history, looks forward to further educational achievement and greater success. During the many years that I have had the pleasure of serving Lake View High School, I have seen the old school make much progress. Great things have been accomplished only because of the character of its student body and the leadership of its splendid faculty. The next quarter of a century must reveal even greater accomplishments for our school.

Certain scientific advancements and economic and social conditions existing in the world today promise a very bright future; however, our society may be facing another tremendous struggle to maintain its freedom. Should this struggle come, it will challenge the very best and utmost effort of all of us. Come what may, we at Lake View High School shall go forward. We accept the challenge of the future, and shall endeavor in every way possible to make Lake View High School continue to live through the century in a glorious manner, and be still greater than ever at the close of its first century of history.

Strictly on the Records

In the above picture are Mrs. Dorothy Fisler, Purchasing Agent; Mrs. Jeannette Hopp, Assistant Registrar; and Mrs. Ruth Tomlin, Secretary to Mr. Daniel. They are assisted by Verdelle Moulton and Marlene Morris.

My class needs new text books

Just ask Mrs. Fisler

Will you take this money now, Mrs. Hultgren?

"Oh, Mrs. Tomlin, be sure that this is in tomorrow's bulletin!

Did you send in my records to college, Mrs. Gallagher?

Mrs. Hopp, will you please file these for me?

All day long, you hear these requests and many others when you are in our busy main office. Our office personnel is always ready to co-operate with teachers and students alike in performing the important daily functions of the school. In the center of all this activity we find the offices of Mr. Boyd and Mr. Daniel, our very capable principal and assistant principal. Whether it is the purchasing of a new set of books, college applications to be filled out, or admittance of new students, our five educational secretaries and their alert troupe of office-practice students, take care of everything.

All is Found in the Main Office

Sitting at the desk are Mr. Mabel Huguen, Treasurer, and Mrs. Ann Cratley, Secretary. In Mr. Boyd, Nancy Butler and Louise Janke are standing by.

At the same desk we see Marjorie Kost and Carol Benkowsky taking the mail to the teachers and boxes.

Development of Character through Guidance and Supervision

Our efficient attendance office maintains a boy's counselor Mr. Bowen and a girl's counselor Miss Esberg whose duty is to check on the absence, tardiness and citizenship of the students. These counselors are ably assisted in their work by Miss Murphy, Mr. Waller and other teachers as well as student personnel.

In regard to tardiness the counselors endeavor to break the students of this bad habit and thus teach them responsibility and punctuality to prepare them for their future for work. The aim of the counselors is to be helpful to the students other than merely to reprimand them. As a result of such competent supervision the attitude of our student body has greatly improved.

A new function of this department incorporated this year is the Pony Express. The purpose of this organization is to perform outside errands for the school. The total number of boys active in the Pony Express is twenty-five. Pictured at the lower left are eleven members: H. Pooch, E. Jasper, J. Rogers, J. Knudsen, G. Colman, T. Kennedy, J. Thompson, W. Friendly Counselors Help

The members of the faculty who counsel questioning students, no matter what the problem may be, are: Miss Phyllis Kreis, Supervisor of the Adjustment Department, assisted by Miss Schryver, Miss Leech, Miss Greiner, Miss Block, Miss Maxey, Mrs. Vlosak, Mrs. McMillan, and Miss Treado.

Bulletins of the various colleges are available to the prospective entrant. Here we see a group of seniors scanning the material offered. Miss Hope Leech has charge of this phase of the work.

In the lower left hand picture Miss Treado is shown testing a student.

On Thursdays Mrs. Leota Boetticher, psychologist on the staff of the Bureau of Child Study comes to Lake View for individual case work. She also assists with testing programs for ZA students.

Solve The Students' Problems

Here we see Miss Margaret Greener, who is the full-time Placement Counselor, S. C. class teachers and students with vocational planning, and administrative vocational tests. It is she who interviews all students on their major high school plans and keeps questionnaires and those who work part time and payment.

The objective of modern education is to adjust the school to the needs of its students. It is the function of the Adjustment Department to help the administrative leaders, the faculty, and the parents to adjust this school to the needs of its boys and girls. To meet their problems, this Department finds out what their abilities, limitations, and interests are by conducting a thorough testing program. Tests of intelligence, reading, and mathematics are administered, along with interest and vocational questionnaires.

The World of Books Introduced Through English

The English Language— Enriching Our Heritage Through Progressive Study

The aim of the English Department has always been to train the students for a fuller life. Whether they enter college or the business field, they will need to communicate ideas by the spoken or written word. To do this clearly, correctly, and interestingly one needs the kind of English background that Lake View provides.

In the past English was a fixed course; it is now flexible, and, in the future, it will be even more so. The attention paid now to the contemporary authors, and our new television class are manifestations of this flexibility.

The following pages contain contributions from the English Department.

MOTHER

The grey of her temples,
The dimple in her chin,
The smile that makes you happy
Her body still quite trim

Her taste of colors is just right,
Not too dull and not too bright
The way she talks with ease and grace
No faults find I, none to trace

In my opinion there could not be,
A more able person to bring up me,
She is my symbol of light and hope
And forever she will be

A MOUNTAIN

Have you ever seen a mountain,
A mountain tall and steep?

On which the stars look down at night
A mountain like a castle
It's lovely, and, although
It has no soul to pray with,
It's close to God, you know

THE QUESTION

The child stood at the window, looking out,
And "What am I," is what I heard him say.
Ah, child, you are quickly growing up,
You've lost a part of childhood this day

Yes childhood, so safe and so secure,
Never wondering at life slipping by,
Never questioning what is on the surface
Never asking the burning question why

No, only adults look for something hidden,
Not content to live, and ask no more
They must know the reason for existing
They must know what lies beyond the door

But the child looked up at me, expecting answers
"Don't worry yet, you're just a child," I cried
He took this as an answer to his question,
And slept serenely; he was satisfied

THE BABY-SITTER

Seventy-five cents an hour, that is my rate,
To stay with your children until very late
I watch little darlings, so good, so sweet,
I strain their potatoes and grind up their meat.
I put them to bed, read a story or ten,
About the "Three Bears" or the "Forgelful Wren."
Some tear out my hair or poke my eye,
And while I to the first-aid kit do fly,
Knock over tables, lamps, and chairs,
Push little sister down three flights of stairs
They scream in my ears, pound on my head,
Holler for candy while Sue falls from bed.
I can't do my homework; my papers they tear;
Eat my crayolas; pour ink in my hair;
Holler for water; cry for some more,
Drink up half; throw the rest on the floor.
Oh, yes, I'll watch your children 'til late,
A baby sitter am I, seventy-five cents is my rate.

IMPRESSIONS OF WINTER

Everything is white in the winter. The ugly, crooked fingers of barren autumn trees are covered with white billows of soft snow; and their snow-covered branches, silhouetted against the light blue sky, appear to be fine patterns of the most delicate lace.

Crunch! Crunch! Crunch!

—That's the sound I hear when walking alone, early in the morning, on sidewalks, covered with inches of white. The rhythm of my footsteps beats little phrases and songs to my thoughts .

Did you ever wonder what power designed the lovely frosted window-panes you see each winter morning? Feathers of ice are strewn across the glass, only to melt too soon into droplets of cold, crystal clear water, that slowly sink out of sight . . .

SEASONS

Softly blows the breeze
The scent of flowers bearing,
Gently stir the trees—
All their beauty sharing
With the cloudless sky,
Azure, calm, serene.
While swiftly bubbling by,
The brook completes the scene.

The air is wet with heat,
And never a breath of wind.
The lush earth waits to greet
Rain only heaven can send
Dark clouds blacken the plain,
With flashes of lightning rent;
A torrent of wind and rain
And Nature's fury's spent.

A world of brilliant hues,
As gales tempestuous blow,
Gray clouds obscure the blue,
But reflect the glory below
The harvest time of earth,
When Nature gathers her store.
And all of beauty or worth
Returns to Her once more

Bleak, desolate, windswept sea,
Unbroken stretch of white,
Save for a lonely tree
That mingles with the night,
Night with pale moonbeams
That dance upon the snow.
A land of haunting dreams,
While cold the North Wind blows.

SUNSET

When shadows are falling,
And evening is born,
I sit by my window
So weary and worn

The blue sea beside me,
The gulls overhead,
The whole world is quiet,
The sky's turning red

The sight I behold
None finer I know
The sun is just setting
The whole world's aglow.

The haze of bright colors,
The reds and the golds,
Its beauty enthralls me
As each scene unfolds

But deep in the distance
The sun far away,
Brings beauty at evening
And brightens the day

Since television has become such a large part of our modern world, the technique of make-up has become most important

THE SNOW

The snow is such a wondrous thing
It comes so gently falling down,
It blows against the window panes
And covers all the streets in town

It falls upon the forest trees
And buildings high and tall,
It leaves a very lustrous scene
Besides a hill or waterfall

The crystal flakes so pure and white
Are falling all around,
To cover everything in sight
On top of hills or lower ground

It has a very lovely glow
And makes you want to sing,
But often makes you very sad
When it disappears in spring

THE GAME

There's nothing quite so thrilling
As a victory is to me,
A time when all our fellows
Famous heroes seem to be

A burst of sudden cheering
Loudly swells up from the stands,
As the boys appear out on the floor
The ball in able hands

Those uniforms of red and white
Go streaking by to score
But through much hard and vigorous play,
Their trimness is no more

As they guard all their opponents
As they race about the floor,
The basket waits, above them,
For our boys to boast their score

Hoorah! Whoopie! It's over!
The victory's on our side!
Our boys come through as they'll always do,
All heroes, Lake View's pride!

HAVE YOU?

Have you looked upon an evening sunset that sheds its flaming rays of gold?
Have you sailed the ocean blue with shimmering moon-
beams dancing bold?
Have you climbed the highest mountains where the peaks stand white and free?
Have you seen a sight so stately as a great majestic tree?
If you have viewed these wonders, then your life is truly blest,
So pause, and thankful be for beauty, peace, and rest

THE TOWER OF LEARNING

A Tower, deep ebony against the star-frosted Night,
Her age-old panes asleep, yet reflecting the fiery Ember
Of Learning. And her many children passing by carry the Light
Of Knowledge and Hope; and they pause . . . and remember

A Tower, bathed in snowy Moonlight
Standing supreme among her subjects, great and immortal
In the hearts of children. And soon the Sun, radiant with Promise, will cast his aureate rays upon her portal

A Tower, unbowed, and reaching for the Skies,
Her enduring Attainments unquenched, her Torch still burning.
And the Sun, heralded by rosy Dawn, beyond the Tower
doth rise,
To reflect on the panes as the Golden Light of Learning

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

The flowers of the land in magic array,
With colors as lovely as the break of day
The trees as high and free as the birds,
Too precious for one to put into words,
The grassy plains of the western lands,
The sweeping effect of the desert sands
A sky of such an azure blue
As a sapphire with its brilliant hue,
The quaint little farm with its clean white home,
The proud, stately buildings where e'er you roam
The joy of living in a land that is free,
That's what America means to me

LOVE

A boy, a girl walked through the park,
Hand in hand they strolled,
And laughed, and talked of many things,
About their life, when old

They talked of love and marriage
And how happy they would be,
About a home and children
Who would fill their lives with glee

He smiled at her, and she at him,
For they were much in love,
This boy, this girl, who through the park
Walked, smiling, hand in glove

A MUSICIAN'S DECISION

A world to conquer; a world to please,
I have to choose just one of these.
The first to please myself alone,
To have the pow'r of skilful tone

The second one is really giving
Some joy to those who are now living,
To bring some sun in rainy lands,
With music played by willing hands.

I've made my choice and now I know
That God will help to draw my bow,
And always guide me as I try
To serve this world before I die

Miss Wetzler, Chairman of the English Department, has charge of the English Bookroom, where so many books are in constant circulation. Nels Flodin, one of her assistants, is pictured helping her in this very necessary, but not spectacular, part of the English course of study.

AN APPRECIATION OF TEACHERS

I think America's greatest unsung heroine is the primary grade school teacher. Every day she is at her work by eight-thirty A.M. in all weather. If she teaches kindergarten she must wipe noses, tie shoe laces, re-arrange hair ribbons, not to speak of the buttons and zippers she must take care of in the children's heavy winter clothes. She sees that little Susie passes enough chalk to each child, and that little Jimmy collects the papers in one piece instead of fragments.

And yet she is able to soothe the angry or anxious parent, joke with the principal, and smile at the superintendent when he or she makes his rounds. The forty little monsters are always safe in her care in spite of crowded conditions and poor equipment.

And what is her reward? Headaches and poor pay, you think? Hardly! When she reads that her erstwhile "little Jimmy" has just discovered a new cure for a dread disease, and "little Sally" is starring in a new movie, she realizes that perhaps by some unconscious word or deed she has influenced her pupils in good ways. I am sure you will agree that reward is a precious one.

A CHILD'S PRAYER

The snow was falling gently to the ground, making a beautiful white pattern over the near-by fields. Time was fleeing, and the sky was growing darker by the minute. The beautiful picture made by the combination of the snow and sky was disturbed only momentarily by the small footprints of a child not much older than six. The footprints did not follow the usual zigzagging pattern you would expect from a small boy; instead, they showed slow, but determined steps. Finally, they turned from the picturesque fields to the sloppy, wet road which ran through the heart of Winterville.

The town was quiet except for the soft singing which could be heard coming from the small church which stood out in mosaic like fashion against the homelike surroundings. The boy paused as he passed the candle-lit structure, and as he stood there a passer-by would have seen a sparkling tear roll down the wind-burned cheek. The singing soon ended and the people filed out in the noisy manner, which is usually heard when the merry season of Christmas is at hand. The boy had walked past a few doors so that he could watch this happy crowd emerge from the church without being disturbed. As the last straggler was homeward bound, the boy turned toward the inviting shelter of the church and advanced slowly up the cold cement stairs.

The light from the candles reflected a soft shadow from the marble statues, and the boy gazed fondly at the happiness which was expressed in the faces of these human-like figures. As he stared, he suddenly became aware of the tiredness that crept over him from the long walk through the snow-covered fields and grounds. The bench, as hard as it sometimes appeared, was a place of comfort to him. Here in this deserted church he experienced the feeling of being loved and belonging. His little hands rose shakily from his pockets and clasped with the fingers pointed toward heaven, and his small lips began to move in a prayer which was sincere and simple.

"Dear God," he prayed, "please make sure that my mommy and daddy have a nice Christmas. I haven't seen them since we knelt together in the church last Christmas, but some day they'll come back and then we can go out together like before. Please take care of the people at the big house where I stay now; they're all very nice to me, but I still wish mommy and daddy were here. Give the little girl there the dolly she's been wanting for a long time, and, dear God, please have a nice Christmas, too."

As the soft words sounded through the hollow church very light footsteps could be heard on the mat at the entrance. A black clad man walked down the aisle toward the child, and, as he drew nearer, his eyes filled with the same sparkling that had appeared in the eyes of the boy a short time before. The boy was so intent on his little talk to God that he didn't gaze up until the man stood next to him and said gently, "Johnny, Mrs. Gladding is here from the orphanage. She's been looking all over for you. You'd better be getting back to the house now; it's getting cold out and you're not dressed very warm. Come now, and I'll walk you to the back of the church." As they ascended from the pew the little hand reached instinctively upward and found its way into the huge palm of the man walking beside him. . . . And as the priest turned toward the statue of the Christ Child in the crib, he thought he detected a sparkling in His eye that had not appeared there before.

Language is The Key to New Worlds

At your right a Latin student is seen identifying the famous buildings of the Roman Forum in connection with the class study of ancient Rome and her language.

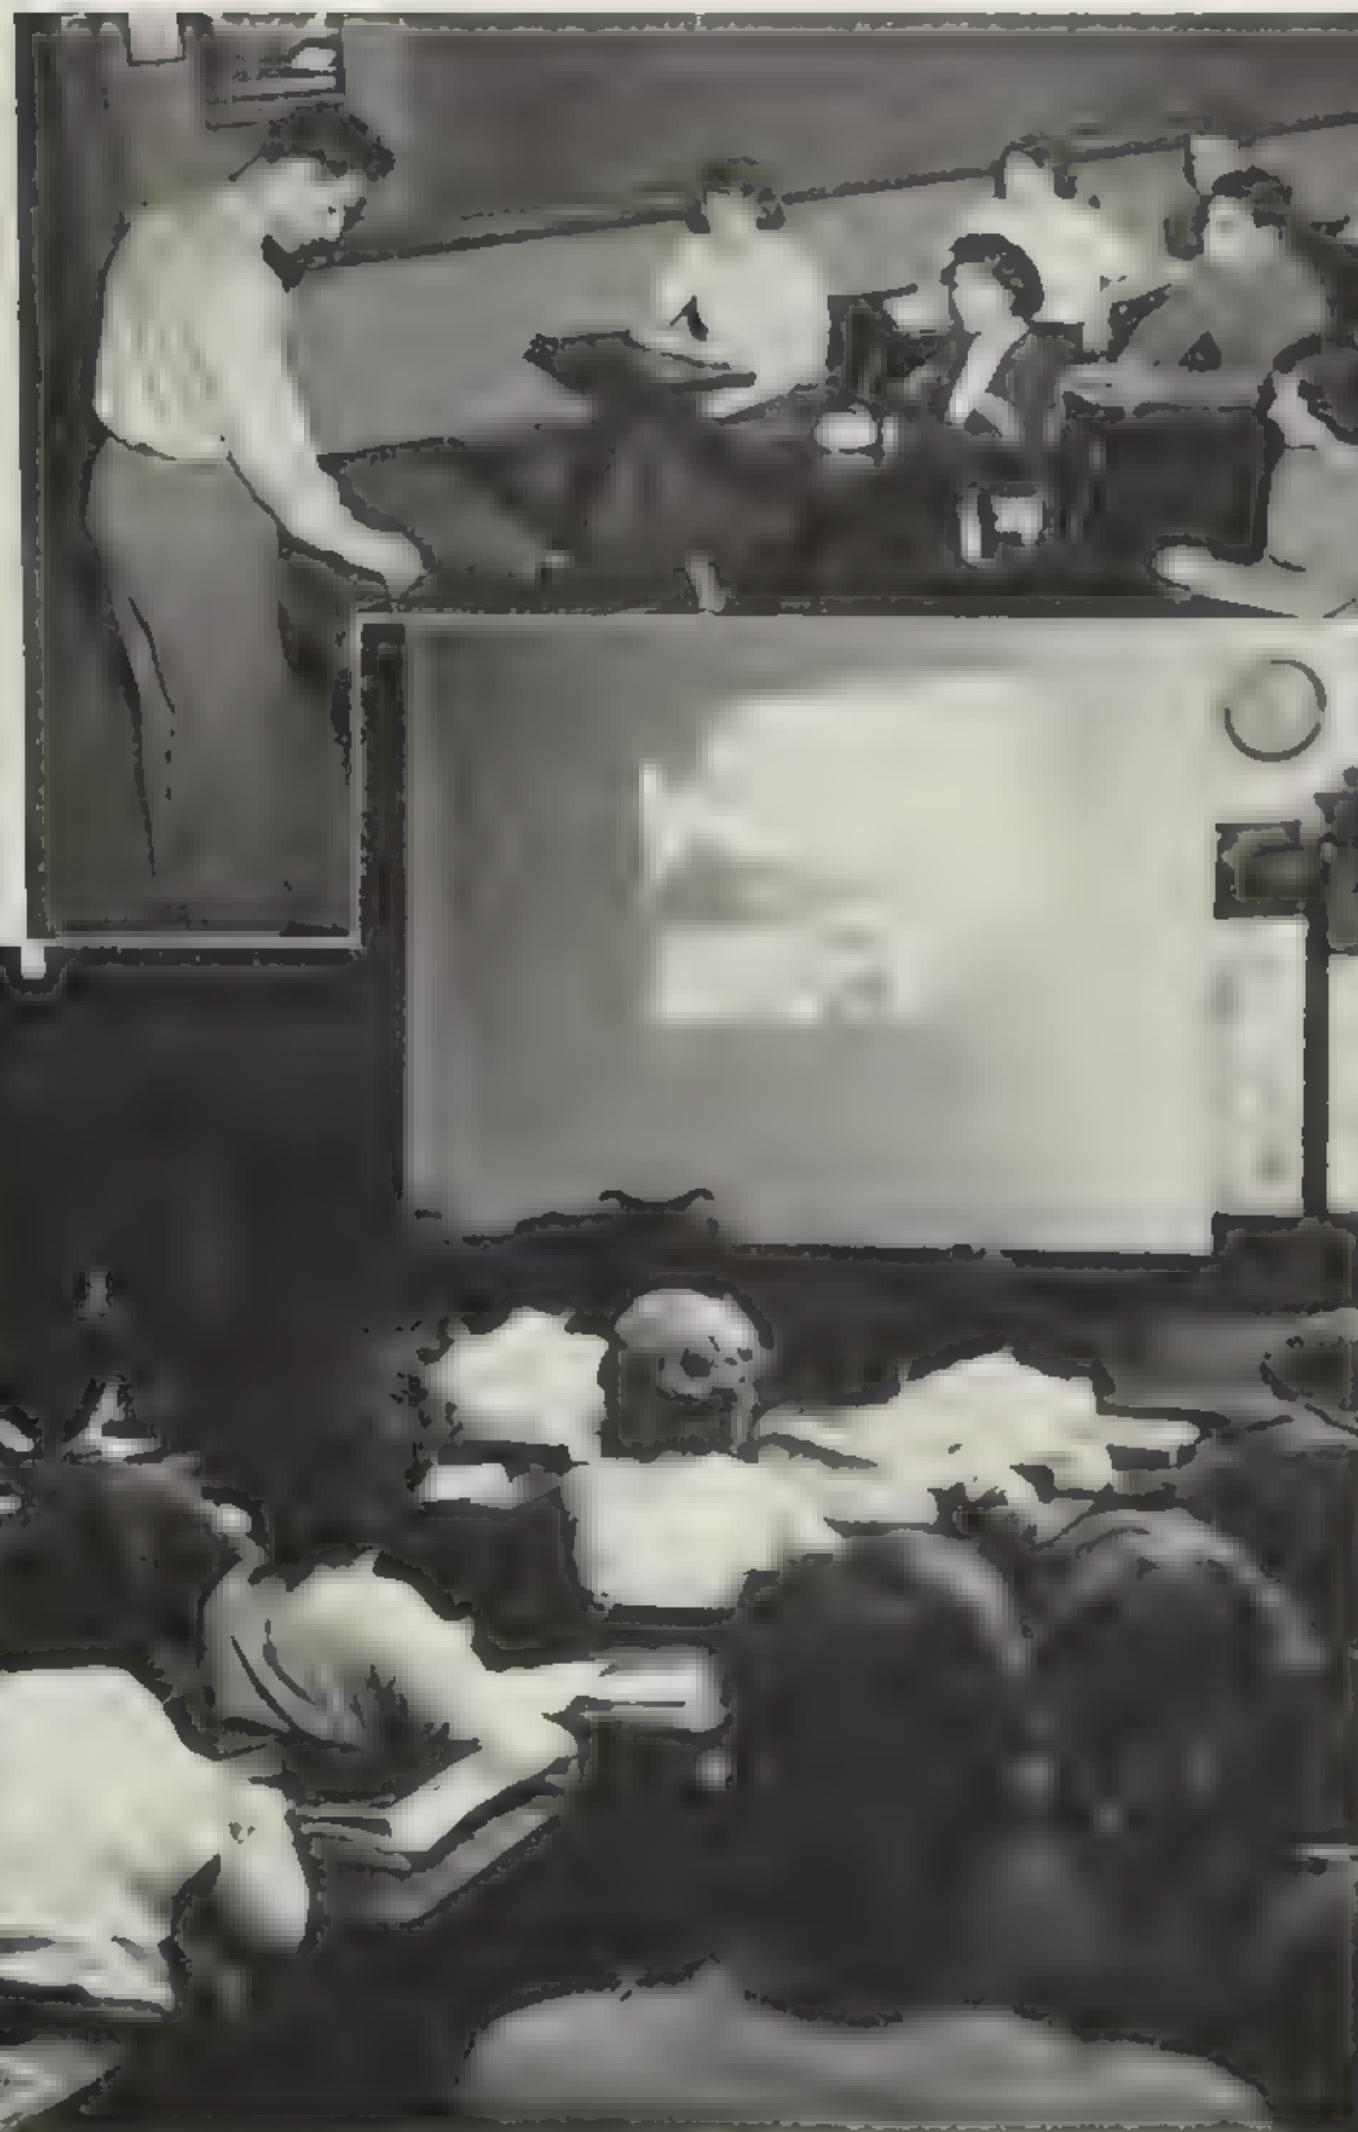

A Latin class is listening intently to a translation of a story about a famous Roman hero. These students discover how much Latin benefits them in their daily use of English.

To the right is Peter Woltre, recently arrived from Germany describing his homeland to a group of students studying German.

The Spanish students are looking at pictures of lovely señoritas reminiscent of that romantic language.

A New Approach to an Old Subject

The study of man, his history, environment, his actions, and their causes make up the relatively new field called the Social Sciences. Although history, philosophy, religion, and government are as ancient as civilization, yet the course of study which they comprise is considered an innovation in education. The explanation for this attitude is to be found in the very name, Social Sciences; for it is only recently that these subjects have been scientifically studied concerning their relationship to present problems and social conditions.

Along with this new concept of the Social Sciences have come new courses which aid man in adapting himself to his environment. One of these is the Careers Class shown in the above picture. This course enables the student to select his vocation and those interests which are best suited for his temperament and ability.

This modern slant towards the subject requires modern teaching methods. The showing of instructive films, such as the one viewed by the history class in the picture at the left, is in wide-spread use at Lake View. These films not only explain the subject more clearly, but also present the newest discoveries and theories in the field.

Self-Expression

The Art Department is an outlet for individual creative talent. The study of art extends beyond the field of drawing and painting, and includes such added interests as metalworking, sculpturing in clay, soap, and paraffin, and decorating for special events. Many award-winning posters and paintings have been created by our students. During the Christmas season the windows in the main foyer are painted, and the tree, standing near by, is decorated with ornaments made in the art classes.

Lake View High School offers a carefully planned course of study in commercial art training. The field of Commercial Advertising is gradually becoming more important in the business world. There are few companies that do not advertise today. With this enlarged field grows the need for imaginative and promising young artists.

Miss Roeth introduces her new students to color values, contrasts and their applications, perspective, package designing, and lettering. The next step is tackling real problems such as creating trademarks, menu covers, record albums, and book jackets. Later in the more advanced classes problems in pen and ink, transparent and opaque wash, and spacing and constructing letters, words, and phrases are studied thoroughly. With this knowledge at hand these young advertising artists make attractive car cards, silver and fashion designs, travel posters, flyers, and many other commercial displays. Chicago is the Commercial Art center, and, so anyone electing this fascinating course will be able to obtain first hand information as to the requirements of the particular phase which holds the greatest appeal for him.

Listed below are the Commercial Art students whose outstanding work received special recognition. In the recent Scholastic Art Contest Lake View received the following honors:

Norma Sommer, two Gold Key awards

Gloria Gruninger, a Key award

Certificates of Merit were given to Betty Batenhauser, Gerald Colton, Leonard Gillis, Dorothy Koch, Barbara Ludeke, Marilyn Heagle, Dolores Malchow, Joan Modloff, Betty Nicholas, Gerald Ritholtz, Olga Vaydick, and Armin Zimmerman.

Mathematics . . . Key to Many Professions

Many a student has been introduced to engineering, physics, navigation, and designing through his high school course in mathematics. Classes range from beginning algebra and geometry to the more advanced subjects of college algebra and solid geometry. A recent addition to this course of study is Essentials of Mathematics which provides a good foundation in the basic principles of arithmetic.

These pictures illustrate classroom activity in this department.

Models on Parade

A pajama party? No, these girls from Miss Walters' clothing class are just modeling their completed pajamas.

With one outfit completed, these girls are looking forward to choosing their next clothing ensemble

In these modern times a girl must be conservative, and yet be able to dress with simplicity, taste, and style. For this purpose the girls in the clothing classes learn about material, styles, the care of clothes, and being well-groomed besides actually learning to make their own clothes. The course also offers a style show given by "Simplicity Patterns" for the benefit of the girls who are in the sewing classes. In this way the girls keep up with the changing styles so as to constantly be in step with the modern world

Featuring Clothes they Made

Fine feathers may not make fine birds but those lovely clothes the girls are wearing certainly should enhance their outward charm and appearance

It is important for one to be well dressed for every occasion. These pictures indicate some styles appropriate for school wear, casual, or dressy.

The girls are free to choose any pattern that appeals to them. No pattern may prove too intricate for some. For instance, the girl at the far right chose her pattern from the cover of Seventeen. It was duplicated down to the smallest detail, and was photographed in approximately the same pose.

From a Simple Recipe

The classes in Foods form a most important division of the Home Economics Department. In fully-equipped model kitchens the girls learn how to make everything from a good substantial meal down to dainty hors d'oeuvres. Now and then they prepare cookies and sandwiches for various school functions.

The pictures at the left and below indicate different phases of cooking.

The pictures below show the girls making other delicacies.

The Class That Paves The Road to the Dream Home of Tomorrow

It is indeed an unusual girl who does not dream of a home of her own, and, with this thought in mind, a course in Home Management is offered to all girls who wish to prepare for a homemaking career. Instruction is given to meet all needs which may arise in the home.

Miss Twitchell, a registered nurse, teaches the girls First Aid and Baby Care.

Housekeeping is emphasized as an interesting career rather than a daily chore. The girls are advised on interior decorating, budgeting, and all phases of keeping a neat and pleasant home. The importance of being a gracious hostess and a considerate guest is greatly stressed.

In the Home Management curriculum, a charming apartment has been furnished for the use of the girls in acquiring practical experience. In perusing the illustrations to the right, one finds it difficult to realize that these are actual classrooms.

Young Scientists Explore New Fields

Have you ever chanced to walk past room 36 and noticed an assortment of unsavory odors or perhaps a low rumbling noise followed by the crash of glass and a sharp reprimand from the teacher? Most likely you have. You were experiencing a phenomenon about which you know very little and certainly you may have been slightly alarmed. Yet there is another point of view: the chemistry student will explain to you how he has come to overlook disastrous setbacks such as these and has prepared himself for his stay in the fascinating world of compounds and elements by practicing certain techniques and by learning to apply rules with which he has become quite familiar.

Our chemistry department at Lake View trains us for the future not as chemists but as experimenters and above all, of course, abiding people for the laws of chemistry cannot be broken. The student is soon aware of this and is much the better citizen for it. Hard work, disappointment, suspense and anxiety are all forgotten by the young chemist as he sees his laboratory experiment blossom into perfect satisfying completion. Yes, Lake View's chemistry department and its fine instructors are to be commended for helping us to prepare for our trip into the future as clear-thinking, responsible citizens—not the scatter-brained carefree "Willie" type about whom I has been told.

We had a little Willie
Now Willie is no more
For what he thought was H₂O
Was H₂S!

In General Science the freshman is introduced to the fascinating realm of the unknown. Pictures of the left show these young explorers uncovering new knowledge through individual experimentation.

From Amoeba to Man

Life in all its many forms is what the biology student studies. He tears aside the veil of mystery which surrounds these different forms, and finds the answers to some of life's questions. The classes in biology keep abreast of the latest advances. In fact, one class is raising hamsters—a recently discovered little animal which may some day replace the guinea pig in laboratory experiments. Other classes, as seen below, still earn the fundamental facts of biology such as plant cutting. Still others find microscope work engrossing. Somewhere in the vast field of biology there lies an answer for every inquiring mind.

Practical Training

I took a full commercial course from Elementary Business Training to Transcription

Final Please fill out this form, and I may be able to place you

This scene may be enacted many times daily as high school graduates seek employment. Employers demand alert and intelligent young men and women with a good background of practical training. Ever progressive, Lake View offers a complete commercial course to satisfy the requirements of even the most critical employers. The first class available to those interested in a business course is Elementary Business Training. In this class the student gains a general knowledge of the structure of business and everyday facts concerning its operation. From this general introduction one may progress through such specialized phases of business as Clerical Practice, Business Administration, Transcription, and Comptometry. These courses give the prospective employee the practical experience and training so necessary in the modern business world.

For the Business World

A subject such as typing is invaluable to the student in further school work as well as being a pre-requisite for any office work. Bookkeeping, too, has become more and more important in our increasingly complex daily life. A thorough understanding of bookkeeping may prevent many a family quarrel in future years.

As the class room scenes on these pages illustrate, students are taking full advantage of the opportunities this course provides. Lake View continues to point the way in preparing her students for future years; in this case, through proper training in business.

The picture in the lower right was taken while the girls were mimeographing the daily attendance bulletin.

A New Refrain

"A dream is a wish your heart makes." For many years Miss Dorothy M. Hutchins, director of the Girls' Glee Club, dreamed of having a group of girls who would put forth every effort and ounce of strength that they possess to produce an outstanding group of singers. When Mr. Boyd came to Lake View, it was his wish that we have an experienced chorus small enough to give a neat, effective appearance on the stage. As a result, at the beginning of 1950, the Special Girls' Chorus was formed.

Under the auspices of Miss Hutchins, the officers of the chorus, who are Patricia Gavin, President; Helga Zimmerman, Vice-President; Alice Olsen, Secretary; and Lorraine Gleissner, Treasurer, help plan the musical programs, take charge of the sale of tickets for the concert, and plan parties for the group.

Rita Sansone and Trudy Anlauf, an alumna, make the Music Festival more colorful with their lovely solos.

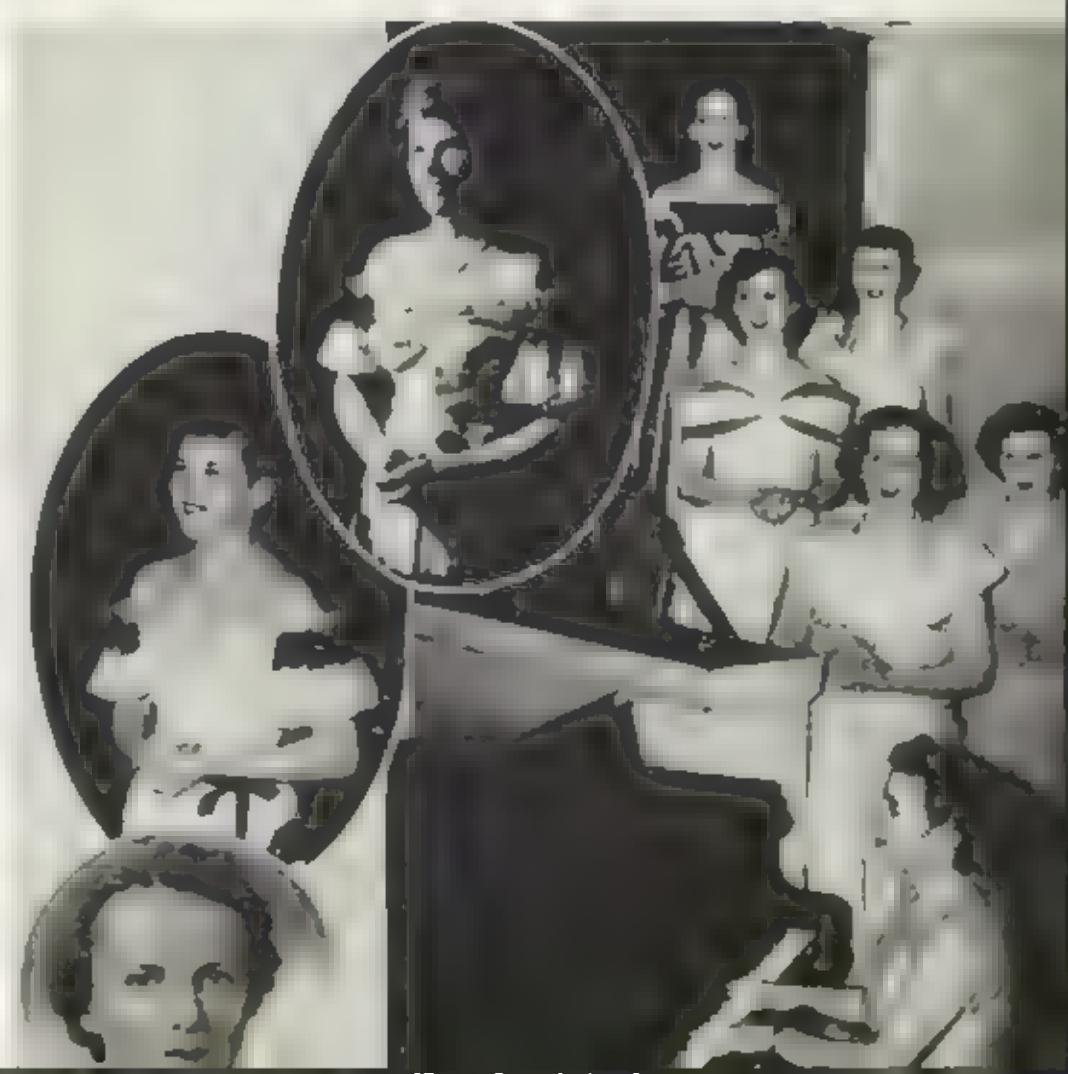

This is just one example of Lake View moving forward. With the combined efforts of Miss Hutchins and the girls in the Special Girls' Chorus, the dreams of all will be fulfilled.

The Strains of Melody

Music is the only universal language. When man is discouraged or despondent, music lifts his soul; when he is in need of an incentive, music inspires him. As do all other artistic pursuits, music serves as an outlet for self-expression.

Experience obtained in Lake View's orchestra forms an excellent foundation for future professional musicians. Students who had before considered music only as a pleasant pastime often are encouraged to think of it as a career.

That Lake View's orchestra is well-known and respected throughout the city reflects not only the student interest, but, as well, the qualifications of its leader, Irving P. Letchinger.

As have all orchestras, Lake View has a social season commencing in October, and extending through June, in which the Spring Music Festival is presented. The climax of the orchestral year is the city-wide high school contest in which Lake View has often received an "S" rating. In addition to these events the orchestra is "instrumental" in school assemblies and at graduations.

Their Voices Blend

Have you ever thrilled to young voices blended in harmonious perfection? Have you ever been inspired by a clear soprano or deep bass rippling from a background of vocal melody? If not, you have not heard our A Cappella Choir, which typifies these points, all important in thrilling an audience.

Under the guidance of Miss Naomi Sweet the choir has always had popular approval through its sincere and successful efforts to entertain Lake View at assemblies and at festivals, and represent her at outside events. At Christmas the season's spirit echoes through the halls of our school as the choir familiarizes us with the beautiful Christmas Carols.

Lake View Marches Forward

Lake Viewites have long been familiar with the exciting rhythms of band music through our R.O.T.C. Band under the inspired direction of Capt. Wolz.

Its members are divided into sections according to the different musical instruments. Through "Cap's" guidance, their talent, and hard practice, these different parts blend into one perfect whole.

Many of the school activities would not seem half so colorful without our band. The high point of the band-year is the city-wide contest in which we were awarded an "S" rating in April of this year.

Our Future Craftsmen

Lake View is one of the few high schools in the city that has work shops. As you can see all of the boys in these four pictures are busy. They are not busy because they have to work but because they are eager to learn.

Under the expert workmanship of the instructors the boys learn to do many things with their hands. The work shops consist of mechanical drawing, wood shop, architecture drawing and electric shop.

Many of our graduates have come back to tell how helpful these classes are. Some of them design and build their own homes. Others put in their own electricity. No matter what their future interests may be all boys gain knowledge which may prove useful in years to come.

Opportunity for All

Rooms 211 and 302 have been set aside for the purpose of giving additional attention to those students with hearing and sight difficulties.

Room 211 is outfitted with a group hearing aid which may be compared with a small scale public address system. It is used for speech training, and for ease of communication during division; also when the students require help during study periods. Records of classical and popular music are played to stimulate the hearing. Lip-reading is successfully taught and practiced by the students.

The attractively decorated sea green walls; the special indirect lighting illuminating the room; and dark green blackboards on which yellow chalk is used all contribute to lessen eye strain and add charm to 302. Mrs. Courtney, the teacher in charge, is most helpful to students who study here.

These rooms are occupied every period for division and study. Well-stocked reference libraries are found here, and the instructors aid students in their studies. Those assigned to these rooms participate in all school activities from football to membership in the honor societies.

'In a purely democratic society,' Mr. Boyd began, 'each individual has an equal chance to participate in government. Since this is somewhat difficult in a sizeable group, it is my aim to set up a kind of student government at Lake View which is most closely related to pure democracy.'

'And you expect to accomplish this by the establishment of a new form of student government,' I declared.

'That's right. In this new system, the division is the main part of the mechanism. From each individual in the division are to come the suggestions which shall sooner or later become a normal part of the school activities providing, of course, that it is possible to use the suggestions.'

'Mr. Boyd, would you mind explaining exactly the way in which this form of student government works so that we may all understand it better and be able to help in every way we can?' I asked, and prepared to take my notes.

'To begin with,' he said, settling comfortably in his chair, 'the division room is like a small family group, wherein each student should be well-acquainted with the other members. It is evident, therefore, that an election here results in officers who are well-known to the other students, and who are able to work successfully with them in planning programs and discussing problems. Such representatives from each division room of each class form the class council, such as the 1B council, the 2B council, et cetera. In these class councils each division room is represented by three students, and all the members of the class are represented by three times as many students as there are divisions in that class. So you see, in this way each student gets ample chance to have his suggestions and problems discussed by one of these representative groups.'

"Isn't there also another council," I asked, "one which makes the ultimate decisions in all matters?"

'Yes, there is. That is called the All-School Council and is composed of officers elected from each class council. It is the duty of each member of this All School Council to bring up matters which have been worked upon by the class council after having been suggested by some individual student. The main decisions lie with this group, which, as you have seen, is composed of the direct representatives of each class council.

For Better Citizenship in a Representative Government

This is a very simple method of student government, and one which seems to come the closest to a purely democratic form. So far, Lake View has adjusted herself very well to the new plan, and her accomplishments have been many. In the future, I hope to see Lake View with a very active student governing group.

As I rose to leave I myself couldn't help but look forward with anticipation to high achievements of Lake View as a result of her well-organized representative government.

As I stepped into Mr. Boyd's office I was again greeted with his usual friendly nod and joking anecdote.

"Now, I suppose you want the particulars on the change in our student council system," he stated.

Surprised that he should guess, I looked up and merely nodded assent.

The changes are simple ones, he began. The first one comes in the set up of the executive council which we are enlarging from the usual four members to five—a president, two vice presidents, a secretary and a treasurer elected by the student body. A more democratic representation is provided in this way.

The other change appears in the membership of the All School Council. We are including representatives of the Lake View Red and White Band, Orchestra, A Cappella Senior Chorus, G.A.A., Football and Basketball teams, Cheerleaders, R.O.T.C., Hi-Q and National Honor Societies, and eight Class Presidents. In this way every organization will have an opportunity to advocate its wishes. It's expected that the presidency of the All School Council will be the most important and sought-after position in the school.

This does seem to be an improvement to the first system. Mr. Boyd and I am certain that it will prove beneficial to the entire school.

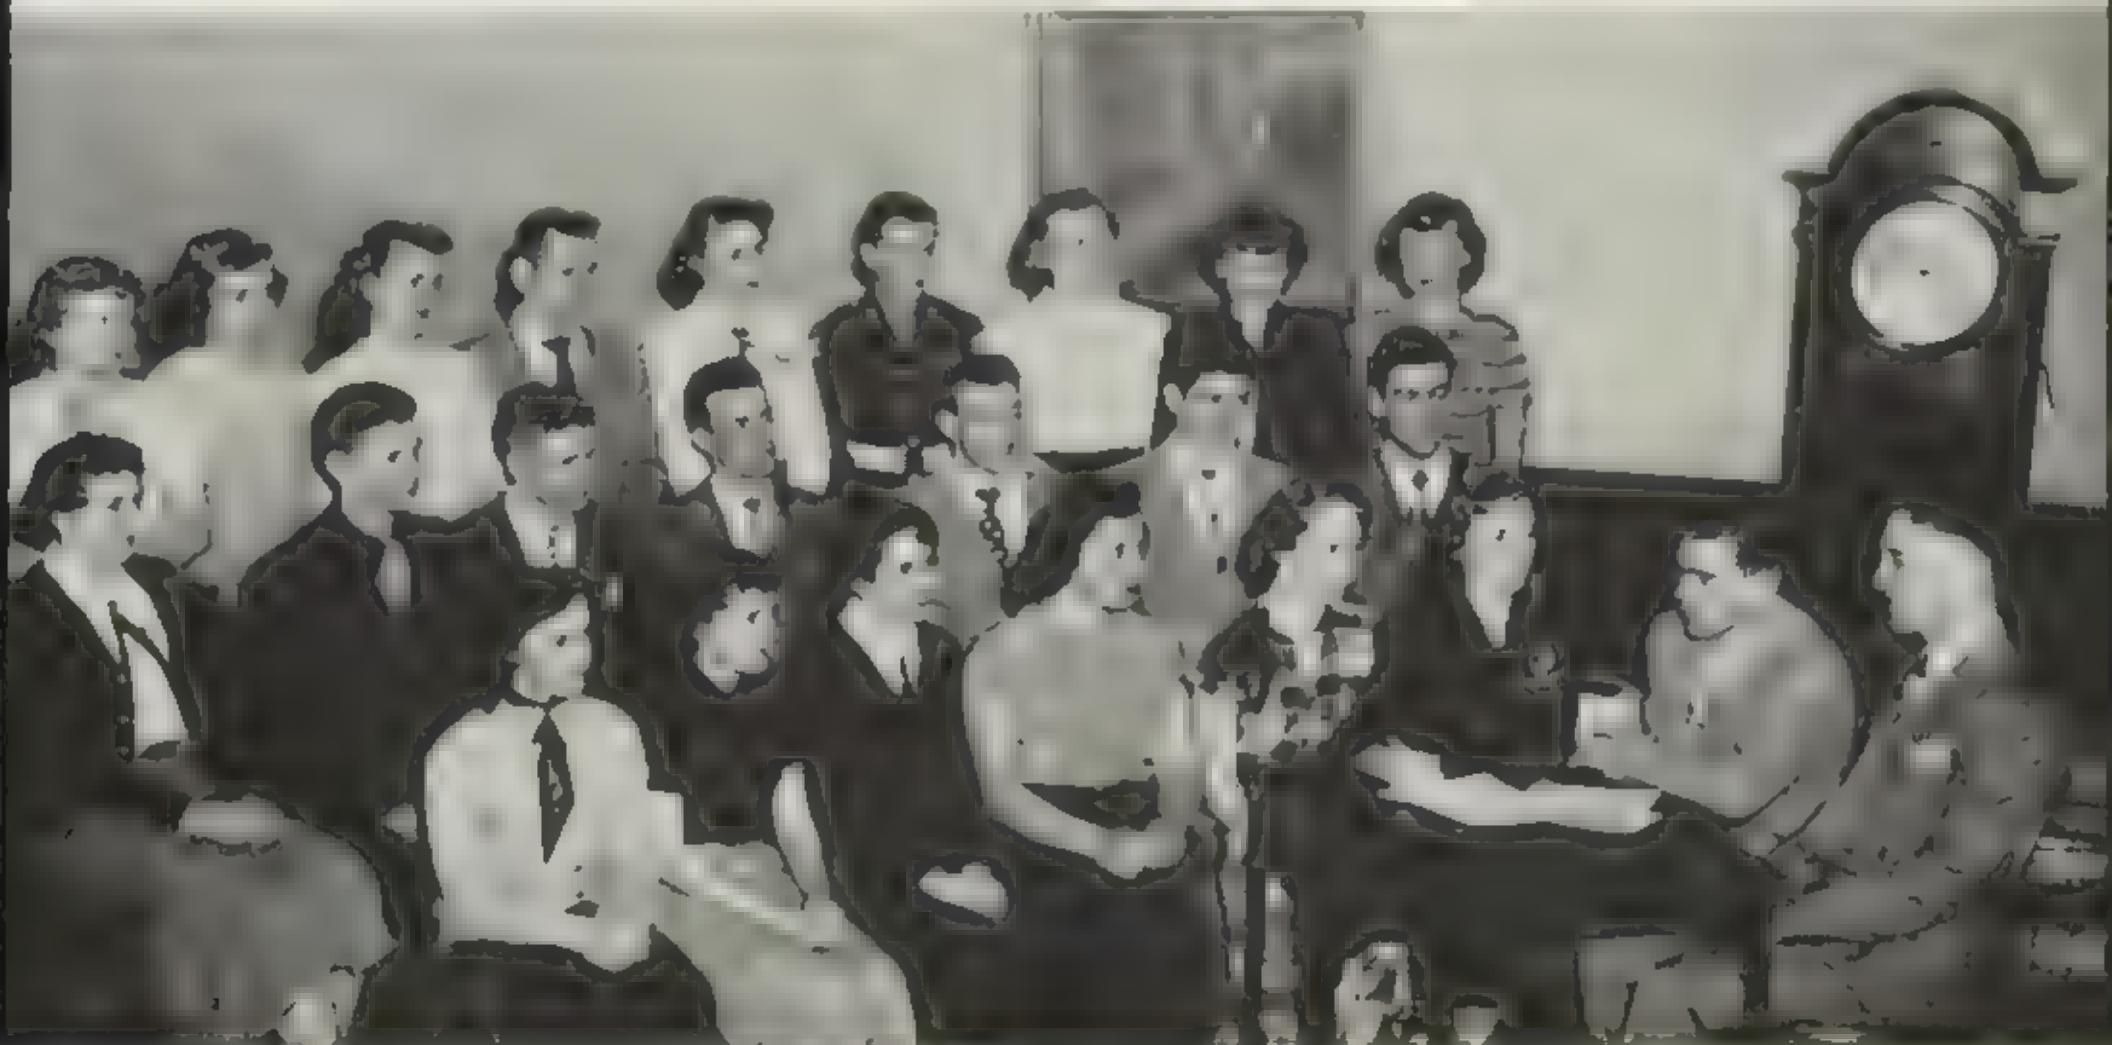

"Yes, we're certain of that, too," he affirmed, "and, by the way, this is a true example of the fact that Lake View moves forward continuously."

What shall I Do! That Class is Closed!

Above is a group observing the Bulletin Board to see if the classes of their choice are open before making out their programs. When finished, it must be checked by one of the workers seen in the rear, to see that it is correct before its final tabulation

Each semester students, as pictured on the stairs, volunteer to aid in the programming

The busiest place in the school for the last eight weeks of each semester is a little room in the basement known as the Registration Office. All Lake View students are required to report here to make out their programs for the coming semester. They approach this room hopeful that the classes they have selected will be open, yet fearful that they may have already been filled.

"There is no Frigate like a Book to Take us Lands Away"-

Emily Dickinson

The most conducive atmosphere for studying in the entire school can be found in our library. The library offers the students an excellent opportunity to follow their individual educational interests with its large collection of 13,509 books. It maintains a full time staff of three people - Miss Catherine Goshkin, head librarian, Miss Mary Funk, and Miss Josephine Frankenberger. Rendering additional service is the student personnel which includes J. Peters, P. Lohan, E. Katzbeck, L. Lintner, B. Hoffman, S. Skoda, L. Gassen, E. Gramich, G. Heilbrun, B. West, W. Burke, M. Werthman, J. Simpson, J. Anderson, M. Karl, S. Bernstein, B. Timmons, D. Leader, L. Glanz, J. Lundgren, T. Kawasakis.

Our library is a most progressive department with its monthly subscriptions to seventy five magazines and numerous pamphlets on up-to-date topics. It also subscribes to two papers, and about 6,000 mounted pictures are at the students' disposal.

Comfortable? Thank the Maintenance Department

A reliable Maintenance Department is an essential element to any school, if that school is to function properly. Lake View can say that she has one of the finest Maintenance Departments in the City of Chicago. This department is capably headed by Mr Albin Stewart, who, with his able assistants, carries out the job of seeing that the school is in proper working condition, as far as the physical property is concerned. A few of the responsibilities of this department are to maintain the proper temperature, keep the school clean, both inside and out, and to see that all supplies and repairs necessary for the operation of the school are taken care of.

The middle picture shows Mr. Stewart watching his aides testing a sample of water taken from the swimming pool for the chlorine content.

The last picture illustrates the lighting of one of the oil burners, which supply the heat for the school.

Unpretentious but Essential

Mrs. Fisler and her capable assistants, W. Feuerriegel, O. Steelberg, F. Kowalewski, K. Ehol, L. Hauer, and R. Beck, render a valuable service to our school by maintaining an efficient system of receiving and placing all school text books.

Caring for the sick, conducting first aid, mending, supervising the lost and found, and other miscellaneous services are what the girls receive from our comforting school nurse, Mrs. Amithor. She has been a reassuring figure to the girls ever since she arrived in September to replace Mrs. Hollzman and cheerfully gives her valuable advice to all who ask for it.

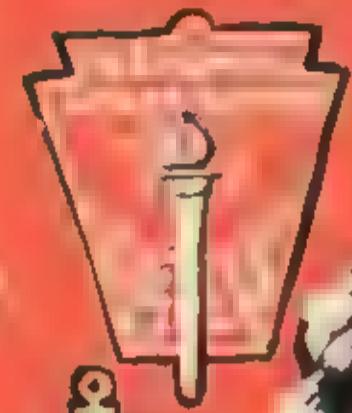

Food at last! Forty minutes out for relaxation, conversation, and fun. At the left is seen a hungry group of students eagerly looking over the selection of food while they wait to be served.

Activities

Just as important to a student as mathematics or science are the many extra-curricular activities that Lake View offers. Every student has an interest, ranging from aesthetics to athletics, and it is vital that each student find an outlet for self-expression. A freshman is bewildered by the size and tempo of high school when he first enters, but, in his sophomore year, he becomes accustomed to his new surroundings and begins to find that nine periods of classrooms and study-halls can become very dull. That is the time when he should have something besides a text-book to think about. To break the monotony of homework, a drill in the R.O.T.C. Room, a meeting of a language club, or a period in the band room, will give him a chance to do what he really likes. After such an activity has given him his chance to relax, he is ready to finish the school day and to look forward to tomorrow. Indeed, it is to be regretted that not every student has found his activity. We anticipate the time when every member of the student body will find his niche in which he can fulfill his greatest desire.

Constant Effort Must Go On

Cor. John Dorothy H., b. Patricia Gove, and Barbara Kraft, re-identifying pictures.

Preparing captions for the Annual's pages are Norma Carlson, Frances Ehrlich, Ingrid Larson, Bernard Boyer, Inga Carlson, and Arilda Johnston.

Visions of our literary masterpieces filling the pages of the "Red and White" soon fade under the careful criticism of the staff members. To the uninitiated, writing for the school annual may seem to be merely a pastime for the literary minded. Unknown to them are the long hours of monotonous routine, the writing and re-writing, in order to make the copy interesting to all. If this seems a dreary picture, we must not forget to include the satisfaction gained in seeing our words in print, and the friendships made in mutual labor. Though the hours are long and the tasks are many, the rewards far exceed the effort. As we join the list of those who have given their time and talents to the "Red and White", we, the Literary Staff, feel proud in our accomplishments, and grateful for the privilege of serving our school.

Barbara T. Olson, Editor, is planning the PSO Red and White with Miss Simpson, Sponsor, and John Insalata, a member of the staff.

To Create a Book of Cherished Memories

One of the many pleasures of laboring over the annual is the chance to work under Miss Simpson, our sponsor. Her unbounding energy and zest has helped us through many discouraging days when work seemed unending. We of The 1950 Red and White Literary Staff wish to take this opportunity to thank her for her guidance and help, her understanding nature, and her cheering words.

Each Phase Plays an Important Part

Much of the beauty of the "Red and White" is due to the striking art work on the pages introducing the various sections. Under the untiring efforts of Miss Edna Crowley and her fine art staff are created these pages, truly works of art.

The main object of any business is getting the product to the consumer. No matter how excellent the quality of the "Red and White", its success depends upon the support of the student body. To Mr. Loren Lucas has fallen the often unappreciated task of managing the business end of the annual. A familiar person around school, he has performed this duty with his usual friendly attitude and efficient manner.

In Shaping the Finished "Red and White"

With her zestful personality and sincere enthusiasm, Miss King directs the sale of "ads" so vital to the book's success. Drawing upon her knowledge of advertising techniques, she ably assisted Mr. Lucas in promoting the sale of this 1950 Annual. Typical of her progressive ideas was the introduction of the stamp method of purchasing this year's "Red and White."

The voice of the students here is the school newspaper—the Lake View
That voice can be a weak squeal or a small mouse or the lion's ear-splitting growl speaking words of fire

As Mr. Louis Skolnick, the paper's sponsor, explained, "The main objective we hope to achieve is that every Lake Viewite will subscribe to the Lake View. With that 100% support behind us we can and will become a really potent force in their behalf to Greatness by Its Paper

Co Editors Second Semester

Patricia Craven and Bruce McCar

The Second Semester staff is getting the paper to bed. They are: M. Sparto, C. George, P. Craven, W. York, R. Williams, F. Woodard, M. Thompson, S. Goodman, B. Micari, L. Sadorf, L. Grossman. Not in picture: F. Hohn.

And that voice will be a strong hard one composed of the individual long mute voices of the students, finding their outlet in the cold black letters on the Lake re View's pages.

The newspaper already has a strong firm foundation on which to base this bright-looking future. A reorganization plan which makes it more difficult to become a staff member has been put into effect by Mr. Skolnick. The four gossip columns have been condensed into one, the sport section is enlarged, and this more efficient staff thinks for itself with light supervision exercised by the sponsor.

The Lake re View will continue to improve as Lake View looks ahead.

Assemblies: Outlet for Student Talent

The regular Wednesday assemblies are an important part of Lake View life. They not only are a relief from classroom routine, but also serve both to entertain and educate the student body. A good example of an informative and entertaining program is the one sponsored by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, at which some of the pictures on these pages were taken. At this assembly the audience is acquainted with many technical facts presented in an interesting manner about the telephone industry. Students are called from the audience to participate in experiments performed on the stage. Each year Lake View looks forward to the arrival of the group of demonstrators from the Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

Many of our assemblies commemorate holidays and special events. Among these are the Armistice and Memorial Day assemblies at which we pay tribute to the Lake View Alumni who served their country. Other programs of this type are those given celebrating Lincoln's birthday, Pan-American Week, and Clean-Up Week.

Informative and Entertaining Programs

Assemblies are also presented by various school organizations such as the Lake View Red and White Hi Qs Student Council, and National Honor Society. These programs promote the sale of school publications, acquaint the students with the activities of school organizations and in the case of the Hi Qs and National Honor Society serve as a formal induction of members. These assemblies help draw the students closer together and give them a better understanding of their school.

The presentation of the colors by the ROTC Color Guard opens every program and sets the proper note of respect and order.

The athletic assemblies are among the most exciting and colorful. The enthusiastic air is heightened by the appearance of the cheerleaders, who lead the students in the "Lake View Loyalty Song".

The programs put on by the Dramatic Department are always good entertainment. An interesting development this year was the production of a television show which was viewed by the audience both on the stage and through special television sets.

Distinguished Guests Awe Students

On February 17, 1950, Lake View was honored by the presence of Chicago's first citizen, Mayor Martin H. Kennelly. The occasion for this visit was a special Anti-Crime Assembly sponsored by the Chicago Board of Education. Guest speakers with the Mayor were: Miss Mary Courtenay, Assistant-Superintendent of Schools, John J. Boyle, State's Attorney of Cook County; James J. Cherry, Assistant-State's Attorney; and John C. Prendergast, Commissioner of Police. Many other outstanding celebrities were present as guests.

The Mayor's genial personality and infectious smile soon endeared him to the Lake View students. His genuine interest in teen-agers was evidenced in his refusal to depart early, and in his insistence upon mingling with the audience and chatting with the students. Everyone at Lake View was honored by his presence, and all look forward hopefully to a possible return visit.

The symbol of the National Honor Society, shown at the left illustrates its four goals: Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service

The Symbol Reflected in Their Actions

The National Honor Society is one of our newest organizations. In February 1950 Mr. Arthur Fieser, who has guided the society since its founding two years ago, placed the sponsorship in the able hands of Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson.

The Society has adopted a social program and members meet monthly in the Social Room to discuss current problems at which time refreshments are served thus enabling the students to chat together and become better acquainted. At these informal meetings plans are made for the Society's program of activities. In addition to the semi-annual assembly at which the National Honor Society inducts its new members in a very impressive ceremony, it also has assumed responsibility for the Clean Up Campaign. More projects will be undertaken as occasions arise.

To gain admittance to this group a student must be in the upper third of his class and have a certain number of service points, depending upon his semester in school. Membership starts in the 3A semester.

The P.T.A. has long been known around Lake View for the fine support they contribute to our school. The aim of this great organization is to bring about a closer relationship between the home and the school by striving to make every parent a member. Also it looks forward to increased interest in attendance at all meetings.

In addition to being ever willing to contribute to the Student Aid Fund, the P.T.A. has undertaken to provide ushers for all evening events which take place here at school.

Our Pleasure . . . To Serve You

Always willing to do their share in our school assemblies and special programs Karen Kangas and Barbara Sanberg, our two talented organists proved indispensable.

A very select group, guided by Mrs Handwerk, makes up the Sen of Service Girls. Whenever a luncheon or party, or a tea is given, these girls can always be depended upon to do an excellent job.

Guardians of Our Corridors

The guardians of our halls, known to us as marshals, are improving day by day. Under the guidance and supervision of Mr. Dickerson, this system was reorganized last fall to provide for more efficient operation. Lake View proudly boasts of one of the finest marshal systems in the city. This semester, and in those to follow, it is hoped to reach an even higher degree of perfection. New methods have been developed concerning the use of signals, which have been tried out and proven successful. The protection of the students and their belongings is the special charge of every marshal.

Ever Ready - - - Always Alert

At the right is seen Bill Holmes, one of our marshals asking Joan Carlson for her pass. But, of course, she has one! The marshals are instructed not to allow anyone to pass through the halls at any time without a pass or note bearing a teacher's signature. Should she not have had a pass, Mr. Holmes would have taken her politely to pay Mr. Dickerson a visit to find out why.

This is a routine the marshals go through every period. As seen, the desk sergeant takes the attendance while the lieutenant carefully hands out their badges of identification. Mr. Dickerson keeps a watchful eye on the proceedings.

Assembled here are the lieutenants, one for each period of the day. Their job is to see that all of the marshals are on their posts. They patrol the entire school during their assigned period. The young lady seated is the head desk sergeant.

One Glorious Night

The R.O.T.C. presented its annual Cadet Hop on a cold December 28th at the Congress Hotel. Beginning at 9 P.M. soft music drifted out from the beautiful Gold Room; and as every couple walked in, they absorbed the breathless mood of an enchanted evening.

This mid-winter ball added a special event to the Christmas Holiday Season. The khaki and gold of the R.O.T.C. uniforms, contrasting with the pastel shades of the girls' gowns, faded into the night; too soon the lovely evening was only a treasured memory, lingering in the minds and hearts of everyone who caught the romantic mood of a truly wonderful Cadet Hop.

A Treasured Memory

The Queen of the Cadet Hop was Polon Garber, escorted in the grand march by Cadet Major Theodore Spak. Her ladies in waiting were Audrey Bur, Faye Woodward and Johnson Angels Borch, LaGarrison, Sandra Cosby and Beau McLeod, accompanied by the ranking officers of the ROTC.

The highlight of the evening was the grand march which was marked by the crowning of the Queen and her Court.

Spring Comes

Amid the gaiety of spring the exotic May Festival blossomed forth. This production, one of the most beautiful events presented during the year, is now becoming a tradition at Lake View.

This year the theme of the festival, performed by the Girls' Physical Education Department and narrated by Patricia Govin, was a dream of two sleeping children. The happy pair danced and played until they became so tired they just had to lie down and rest. In all their excitement they fell asleep. They dreamed of other people dancing as they had danced—some with hoops, some with balloons, and some with funny shoes on their feet. They dreamed they were at a circus where an acrobat was performing. Later ghosts that made them toss and turn appeared. They saw soldiers clad in red and white uniforms, marching to the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." Next they beheld a fairy queen dancing gracefully with a dainty scarf. The children woke as they heard the strains of lovely music, and found they were no longer in a dreamland. For—right before their very eyes—it had really happened! A real queen appeared with a host of shining maids in her court!

to Lake View

The beautiful May Queen Virginia Lehman was crowned by the queen of last year, Beverly Morton, while her lovely Maid of Honor Beauah Sandin and two charming Ladies in Waiting Patricia Garber and Fern Wear attended. The members of her court were Carol Bessing, Carol Capp, Gloria Gioia, Geradine Gruen, Anita Johnston, Rose LaCascia, Alice Olsen, Eunice Schofernak, Rene Schoffen, Lois Sternberg, Marlene Thompson, Georgia Wier and Fleur Woodard.

Following the program the queen, her court, and their mothers attended a luncheon given in their honor in the Social Room.

Teens 'n' Talent

The talent show took on a new mode this year. Instead of only having Lake View talent, we formed a "Friendship Troupe" with four other high schools — Flower Foreman, Kelvyn Park, and Steinmetz. The varied talent from all five schools proved very entertaining.

As in former years the Pope School of Cooking offered a full scholarship to the student whose cake takes the first prize in the Cake Baking Contest. This year Nancy Whyte was the winner.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Mr. and Miss Lake View — Charles Aikman and Charlotte Adams. Their attendants were: Betty Walt, Nicholas Golemis, Nancy Bastian, and William Manzon.

This "Friendship Troupe" will repeat the program at each of the four schools.

In the lower right hand corner appears a picture of the committee of drama teachers from the five schools participating in this program.

Turnabout Dance-A "Gal's" Big Chance

and Lake View girls are certainly not the kind to pass up a big chance, as you can tell from these pictures taken on "The Night." The Student Council and Lake View have every right to be proud of having sponsored this event, because it was the most talked about and really successful dance that Lake View has had in a long time.

Two special attractions of the evening were the presentation of Mr. and Miss Courtesy, Luis Owano and Nancy Bastian, and a contest to choose the best dancing couple. The winners were Marie DeVito and Anthony Lapelina.

Smooth music and a good crowd that wanted to have fun, made the Second Annual Turnabout Dance a wonderful success, and left a host of pleasant memories.

Athletics

Where does athletics fit into the general scheme of education? What relationship is there between writing an English composition and participating in sports? The answer to these questions is to be found in the intangible qualities of character that are developed and broadened in competition. Responsibility rests heavy upon every athlete as he realizes his action may mean the success or failure of the entire team. Industry is an understatement of the driving force which maintains them through rough long hours of practice and routine. Who knows better the worth of dependability than the substitute entering the game at a crucial point? The educator and coach realize these things, but to the boys the greatest advantage of athletics is fellowship; the shared adventures and labors, and above all, those moments of relaxation together after the drudgery of practice or the tension of a game when they can rest in satisfaction and recoup their spirits for that inevitable tomorrow and the work it brings.

Bright Beginning for Future Champions

The brilliant colors of the fluttering pennants, the sudden bursts of cheers or the expressive silence of the spectators as their teams' fortunes rise and wane, and, above all, the air charged with spirit and enthusiasm prove every fall there is no spectacle like a football game. This year an entirely new atmosphere surrounded Lake View's games. A new coach, an inexperienced but fighting team, and, most important, a revitalized school spirit all contributed to a feeling of enthusiastic expectancy at each game. The fans were not disappointed, for every game provided its share of thrills from a fast colorful team that would not admit defeat. The season proved that a new era has begun in Lake View football. The years ahead are filled with promise, and, as each season rolls around, the students of Lake View will once more crowd the stands to cheer their fighting teams on to victory.

Not for many years has the opening of a football season occasioned as much interest and excitement as the season of 1949. No effort was spared to make this campaign a memorable one. Every phase of the game was explored and developed from colorful new uniforms to a revamped playing formation.

These trimmings, together with the familiar cheer-leaders, majorettes, and rousing band, formed the setting; but, it was the team itself which provided the thrills. Our boys realized the task before them as the first team under a new system. They lived up to their responsibility brilliantly—being, above all, a team with spirit and drive.

Go! Team! Go! Fight! Team! Fight!

This was a year of experimentation. These new ventures included the formation of a Girls' Drill Team to perform between the halves, and extended to the introduction of school tradition—the Annual Homecoming Game. This game, played this year on October 19th against Roosevelt, featured the crowning of Beverly Morton as Homecoming Queen between halves. Other innovations were the Lake View Wildcat and Collie, which served as team mascots.

A Drop in the Basket

Each north section school felt a single or double sting of defeat as the Wildcat Senior and Junior teams scored one victory after another.

Both squads finished the regular 1949-50 season sporting a 7-2 record. The Seniors tied for first place; the Juniors finished third. Both teams reached the play-offs winning their first game, and were eliminated in the quarter finals.

Coach Swiryn in his freshman season here moulded the squads into well-organized, high-scoring machines.

There is hard, fast, point-a-minute action from the opening center jump to the referee's final whistle.

Long set and pot shots, short lay-up and push shots, spin through the hoops for two points as the lead continuously changes hands. The crowd gets more tense. The score and excitement builds up simultaneously.

The first-string Junior Team

Forwards, George Halvas, who made the All Star, All City, and All North Section teams, was the city's leading scorer. Bob Lindberg, and Delano Baba. Center, Bob Hale, who made the All Star North Section Team. Guards, George Alinkas and Ed Jasper.

Forwards, Chuck Heybrock, who made the North Section All Star Team, and Al Nader. Center, Ron Boesch. Guards, Ed Whitman, Joe Martorano, who were graduated at mid-year, Jack Filben, and Art Schalk.

The pictures at the right show these, and other reasons, why basketball is the nation's Number One spectator sport.

This year the Lake View swimming team had little chance to display its talent. After a few opening meets, the season was suddenly curtailed due to the coal strike, which resulted in the closing of the pools. However, the team looks forward to a successful season next year.

Lake View's track team has been progressing rapidly this year, as was evidenced by its triumph in the last dual meet of the indoor season. The baseball team at this writing, with the season two-thirds over, is battling Lane and Taft for a play-off berth in the North section.

Behind the fine pitching of right-handers Paul Sorensen and Bill Holmes, the Wildcat nine has five wins so far, beating Schurz 10-2, Sullivan 5-1, Waller 4-1, Senn 5-3, and Von Steuben 2-1. Balancing them are losses to: Roosevelt 16-3, Taft 10-4, Senn 8-1, and two heart-breakers to Lane and Amundsen 5-1 and 1-0 respectively.

This 1950 season finds both a new coach at the helm of the team, Earl Carlson, and an improving student support. Make a resolution for 1951 to see seven innings of hard fast "prep" baseball at its best with the Wildcats!

A Sound Mind in a Sound Body

Physical Education is the name given to the gym department and it fits well the rôle of Lake View. Boys entering Lake View are started on a program of physical training intended primarily to develop health and coordination between mind and body. During their senior year they are given tests to determine how far they have progressed during their four years course. Certificates are awarded to those scoring ninety out of one hundred points and they join the Rangers—an honorary organization. Above are pictures of some of the boys performing exercises in preparation for the tests.

School Spirit - - - With Glamour!

The gleam of the whirling baton has long been a familiar and enjoyable sight to Lake View's football fans, but this year something new has been added to the show—the snappy formations and colorful uniforms of the Girls' Drill Team. This group, under the guidance of Mrs. Hyatt, displayed perfect timing and co-ordination while going through their difficult routines between halves on the field this fall

Sixty girls representing some of the fourteen G.A.A. teams, are here bowling at the Lake View Alleys every Tuesday afternoon. As we go to press, the team leading the race is the Lucky Liners consisting of Anita Johnston Captain, Frances Ehrlich, Virginia Borchoff and Linda Carlson.

These are the girls who led the G.A.A. through the first semester of a highly successful year.

Charlotte Nelson, Treasurer; Barbara Tillotson, Vice-President; Norma Montineili, Secretary; Louise Ostrom, President

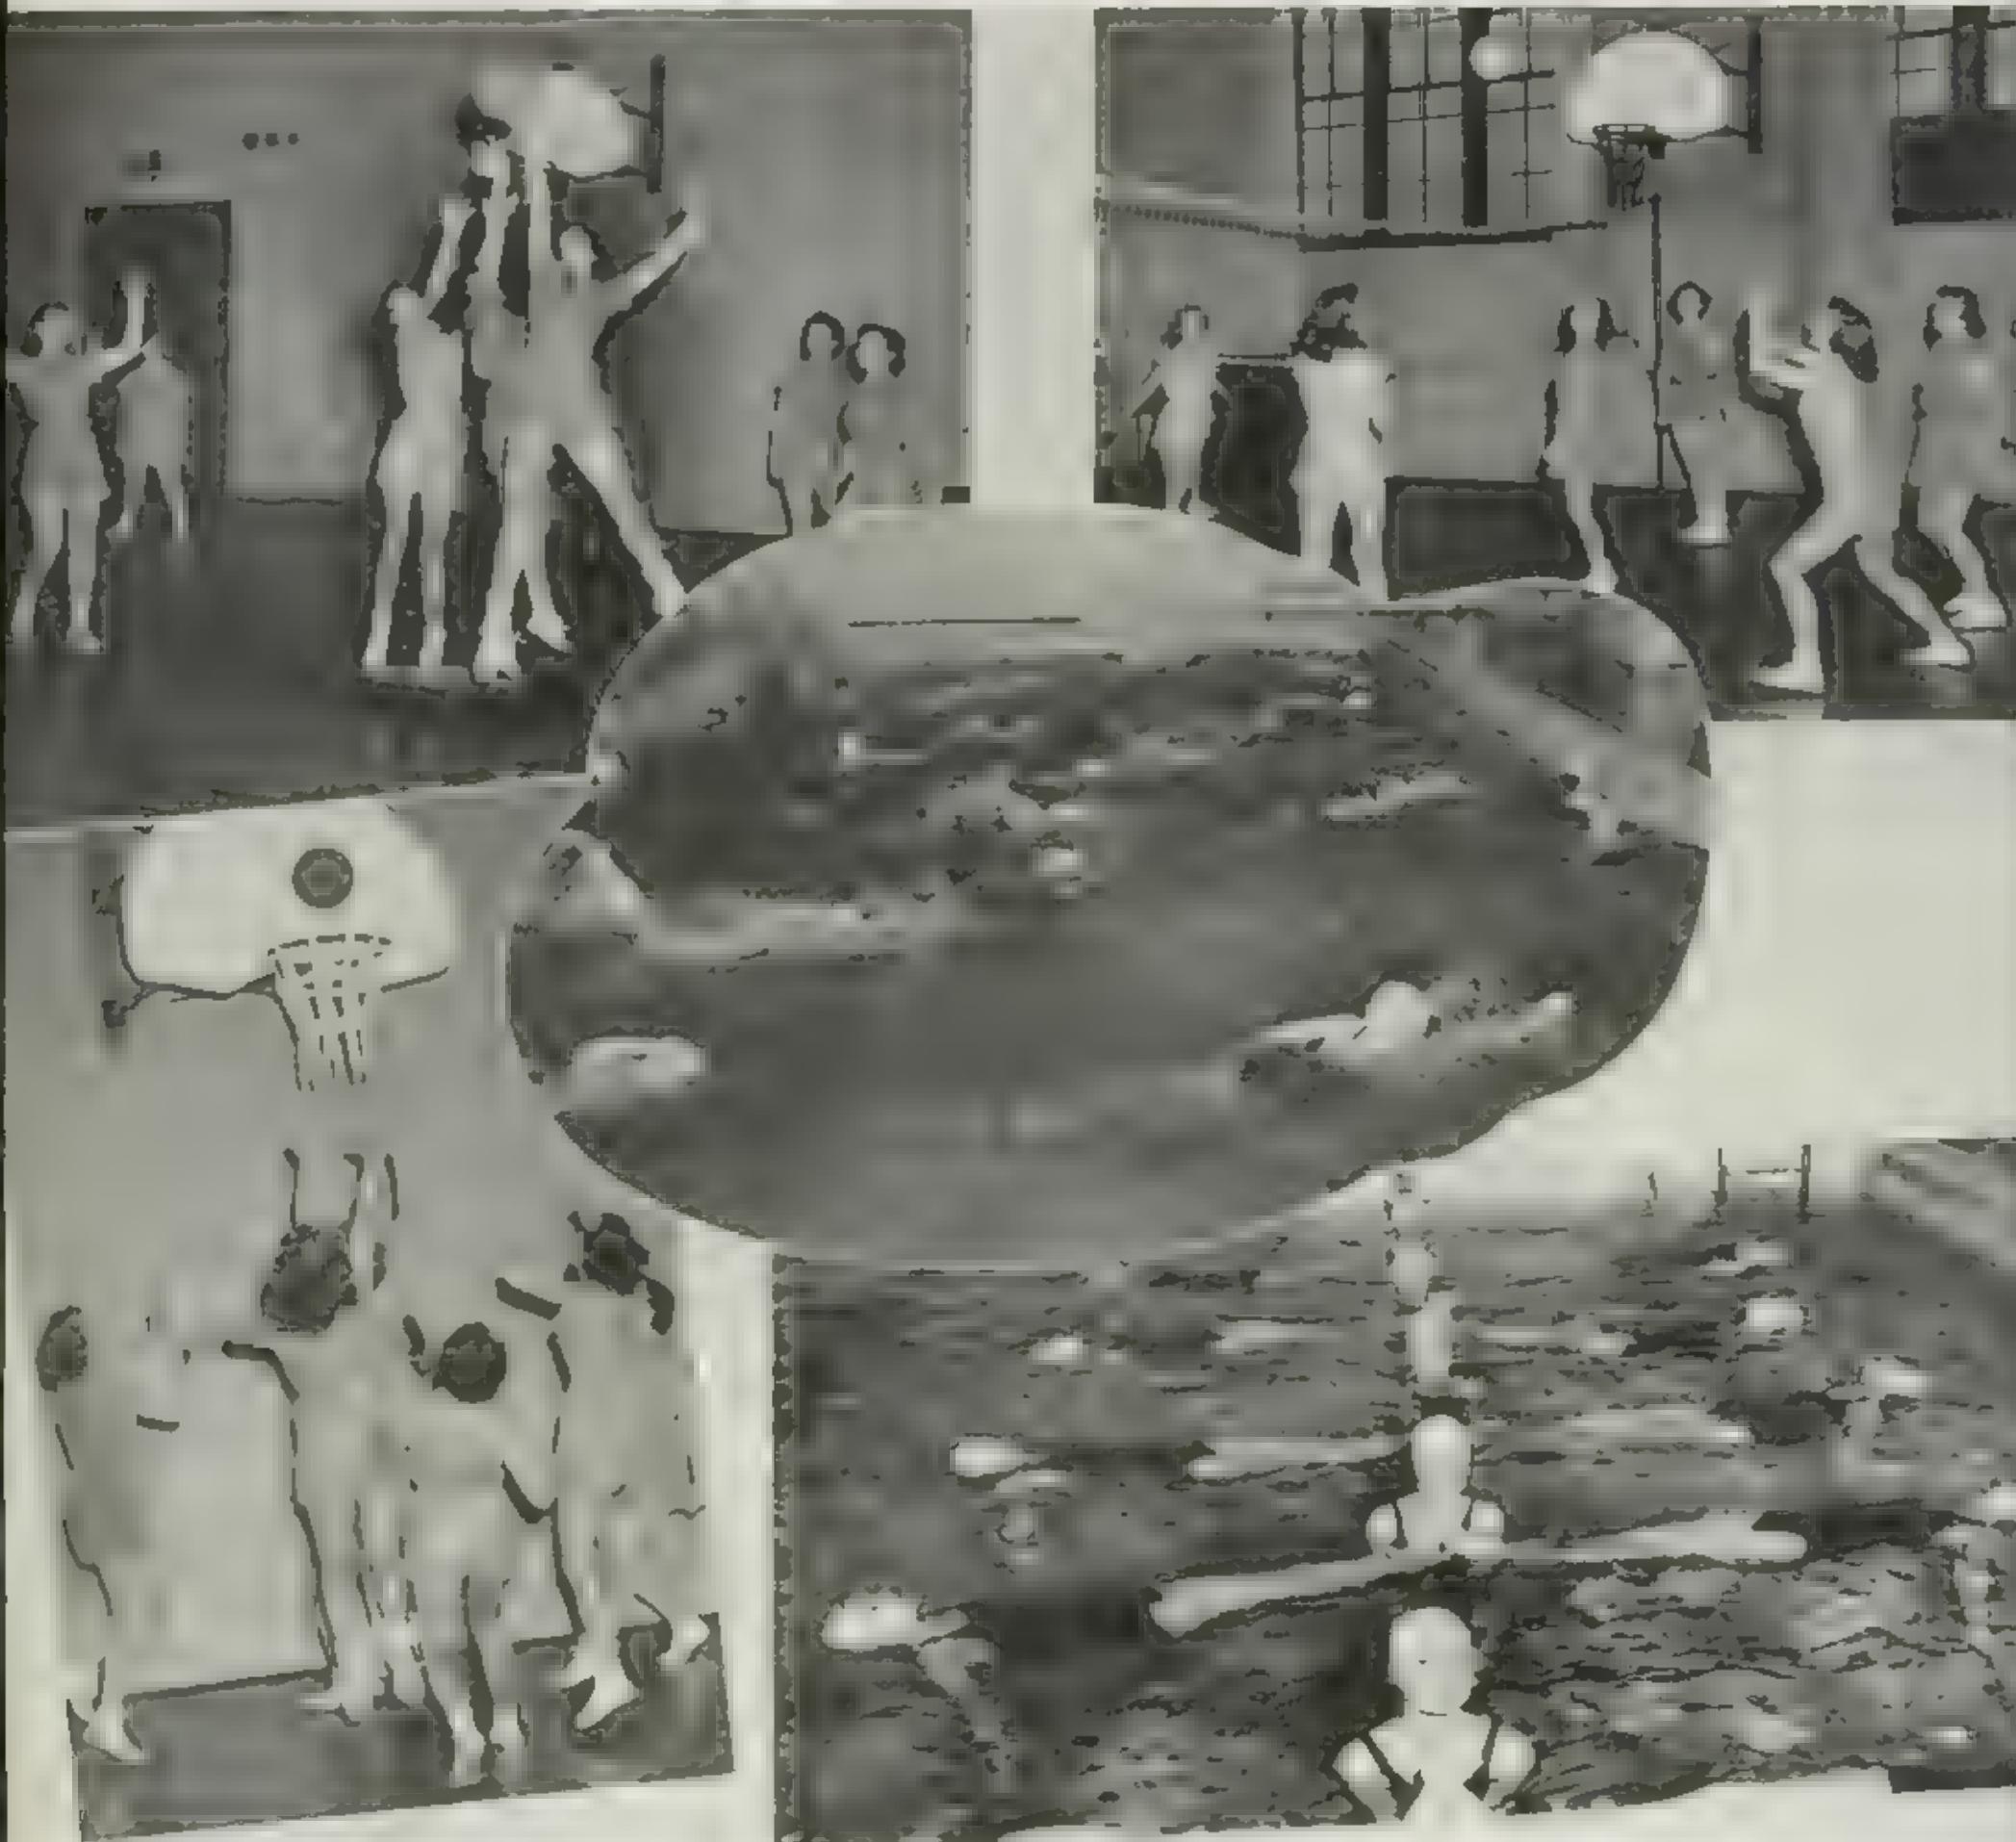

The main aim and purpose of the Girls' Athletic Association is to have every girl in school enrolled. Each term is started off by a drive with this purpose in mind. This semester Miss Zimmerman graciously consented to be the sponsor of the organization. Under her leadership many new and different activities developed, such as the much-popularized teachers versus students volleyball game. Many activities for the girls are carried on after school hours, including hiking, picnics, splash parties, and pot-luck suppers. This year, one of the most enthusiastic groups of girls were the bowlers.

Physical Fitness is the Fundamental Necessity . . .

Besides having for its aim the development of strong bodies, the Girls' Physical Education department also emphasizes the necessity for each girl to learn co-ordination of her muscles and cooperation with team mates. These properties are developed by use of the various apparatus in the gymsnasiums, and also by supervised relays, such as the flag race and jumping rope, and by such organized team games as captain basketball, a scene of which is shown here.

For a Useful Society

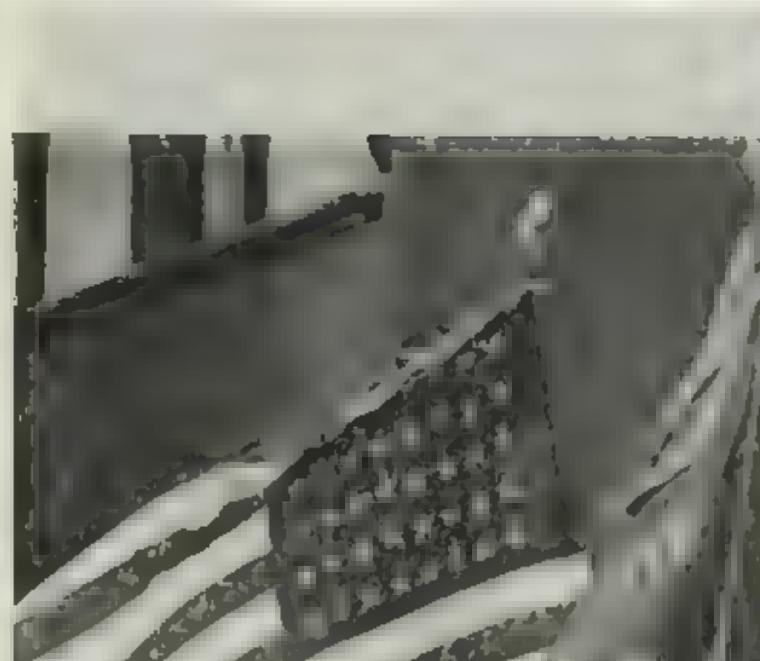

Lake View is fortunate in having a swimming pool to further enhance her program of physical education. Instructions in swimming are given to every student for the purpose of creating an interest in the sport, and to give her important practice which she will always find useful. Special awards are given for achievement in this sport, as well as those given for excellence in baseball, basketball, and volleyball played in the gymnasium.

Grace and Rhythm Stressed through the Dance

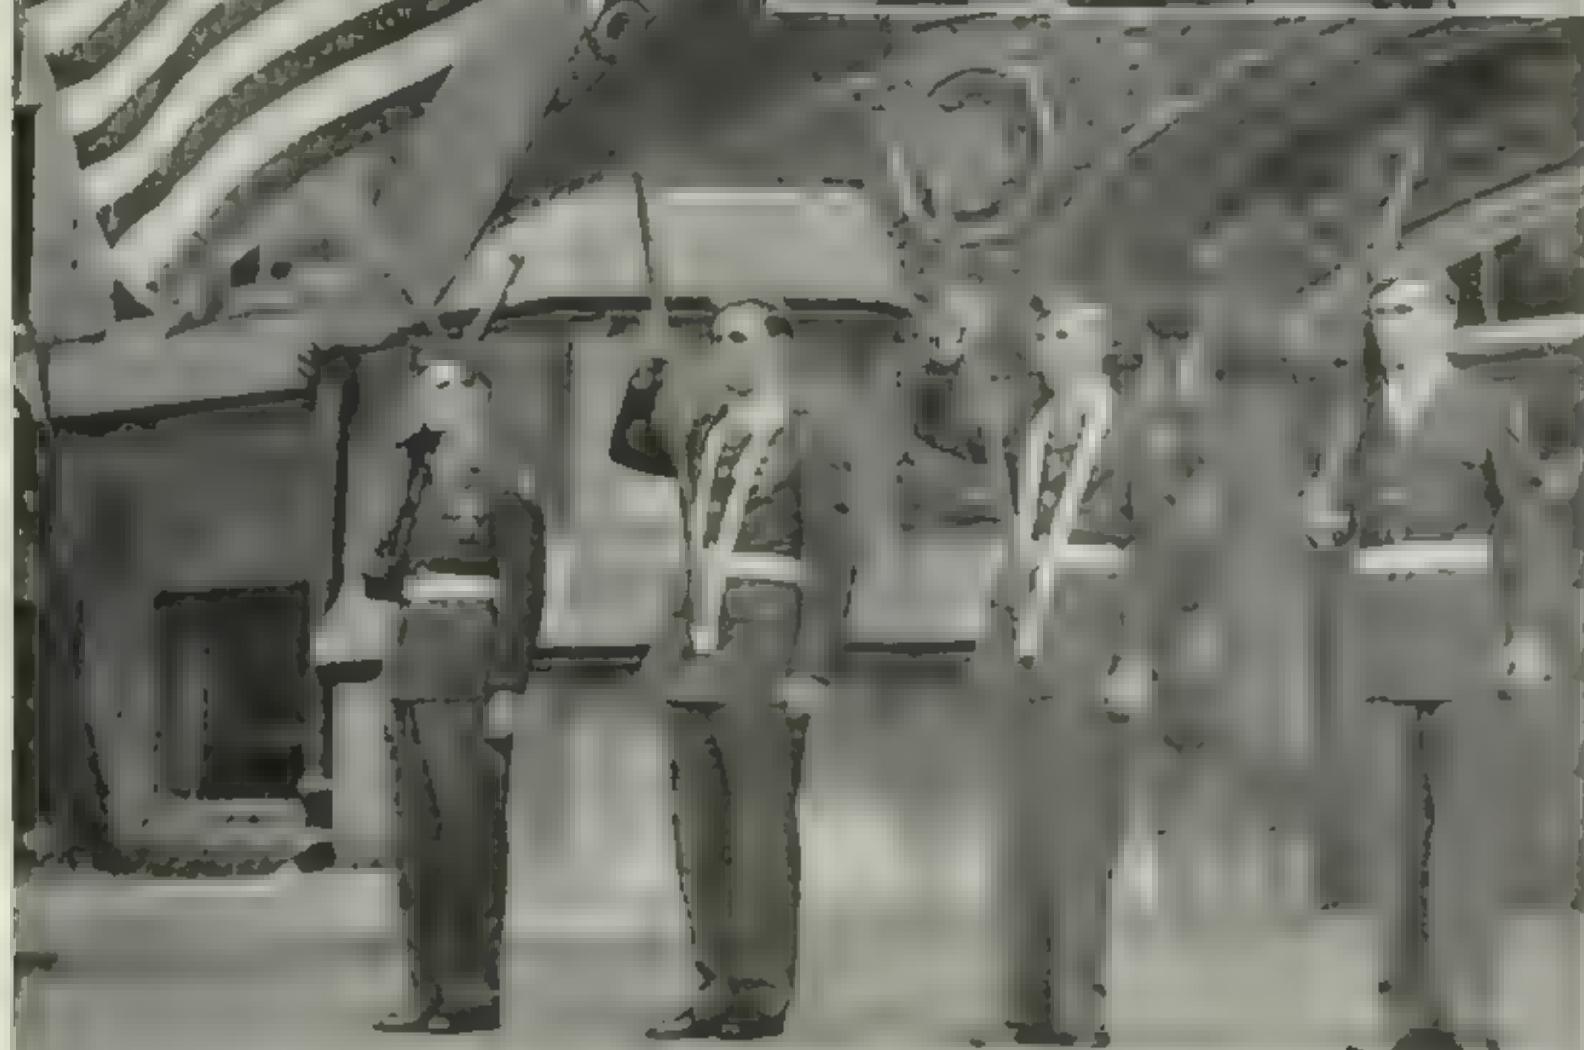

The program would not be complete without classes in the guidance of both modern and old-favorite dances. During these hours, the girls not only learn intricate and interesting steps, but they also learn the gracefulness and poise so essential to their grooming. Various dances taught are the fox-trot, waltz, mazurka, polka, and mountain folk dances.

Forward to Future Achievements

Those pictured with him are Commanding Officer Theodore Spok, Sergeant Major John Thompson, Sergeant Doss, Supply Sergeant Carl Herzog, Adjutant Leonard G.L., Executive Officer Ronald Tann, Public Relations Officer Donald Kanaboy.

The Color Guard, the R.O.T.C. banner bearers, who appear at every assembly and at all important functions at Lake View are Charles Nagler, Charles Slack, Richard Holsey, Fox McCarthy.

The men upon whose shoulders falls the responsibility of giving Lake View a unit to be proud of are Senior Instructor Alton Doss, M.Sgt., Sgt. 1st Class Herbert Smith, and Lewis Franco, M.Sgt. Their common goal is for our R.O.T.C. to attain every conceivable honor which may be bestowed upon a high school unit, and to further her reputation as a school for which no achievement is too small, no task too great.

Seniors

Everyone has a temporary goal in life, something to be reached on the road to success. One of the earlier goals is high school graduation.

A senior is easily one of the happiest persons in school. There is something so exciting, and yet intangible, about being a senior; a feeling that is gained by the knowledge that you have reached the peak of a high school career. A senior stands at the door of the future, for the decisions he makes now will be the factors that influence his entire life; they will be his happiness, or his despair in later years.

You who now stand at this door of the future, or those who are approaching it — you realize the necessity of choosing well. And, so it is, that with a sadness and glimmer of tears, we bid good-bye, and face tomorrow with eager anticipation—for we are the future.

*Thoughts of You
Remain Forever
In Our Memories*

Miss Irmagarde Leach may well be likened unto the staunch helmsman of a storm-tossed vessel, for she has, in a period of twenty years, buoyantly navigated Lake View Seniors through the unpredictable and fathomless depths of their last episode of high school. She has successfully imbedded within their souls the same fine qualities possessed by her own self that they also might become fitting examples of the institution of their youth.

For those of us who know her, there will probably never be a more efficient, guiding, interested personage in our lives, except, perhaps, our own parents; and certainly no one more capable of judging our motives and propelling our ambitions. For these unique attributes Miss Leach was wisely chosen as Senior Sponsor.

Her lovely farm, just north of Chicago, will take up much of Miss Leach's time upon her departure from her old Alma Mater, although a trip to Texas and Arizona is in order first. From then on her time will be spent raising flowers, nieces, and nephews.

Miss Leach's desire to be a teacher ever since she was a youngster undoubtedly accounts for her prestige and accomplishments in that field. Upon her graduation from Northwestern University she began her teaching in Chicago's elementary schools, spending some years at the Armstrong School. A graduate of the Class of 1902, she returned to her Alma Mater in 1922 to teach English and History. In addition to her teaching of United States History to many of the 4As she became the Senior Sponsor in 1930. The things she will miss most, she states, are the students, and the things she learned from them.

This very brief sketch of Miss Irmagarde Leach—a teacher, a friend, a leader—brings to you not half as much of her personality, in all its choice of words, as does the one phrase she leaves with the future Lake View Seniors—

Be good and have fun!"

Miss Leach and Seniors say Farewell

Each semester a select group of 4A girls, known as the Staff and Circle, were chosen to aid Miss Leach in the countless tasks that occurred daily in connection with her sponsorship of the Senior Class. As a pleasant diversion from their duties they met each Friday for luncheon with Miss Leach in her familiar office. This year the membership included Muriel Abramson, Gloria Blickers, Nan Gullickson, Beverly Johnson, Beverly Morton, Barbara Sandberg, Gladys Yosia, Mary Wadsworth, and Joan Fister.

On January 12, 1950, the 4A Staff and Circle surprised Miss Leach with a luncheon in honor of her birthday. Here we see Miss Leach making a wish as she is about to blow out the candles.

Miss Leach gave a party for the Senior Class on her birthday. In the picture at the left we see a group of students drinking a toast to Miss Leach for "Health and Happiness" always.

Mothers of Seniors are Welcomed at Tea

Miss Leach gave her semi-annual tea, as has been her custom, on October 25th for the mothers of the graduating seniors. At this time, in an attractive atmosphere, the mothers had a chance to meet the teachers and sponsors who had prepared their sons and daughters for graduation. Miss Leach was ably assisted by the Class Officers Council, and the Staff and Circle Girls. This always enjoyable affair affords an opportunity for making new friends and greeting old.

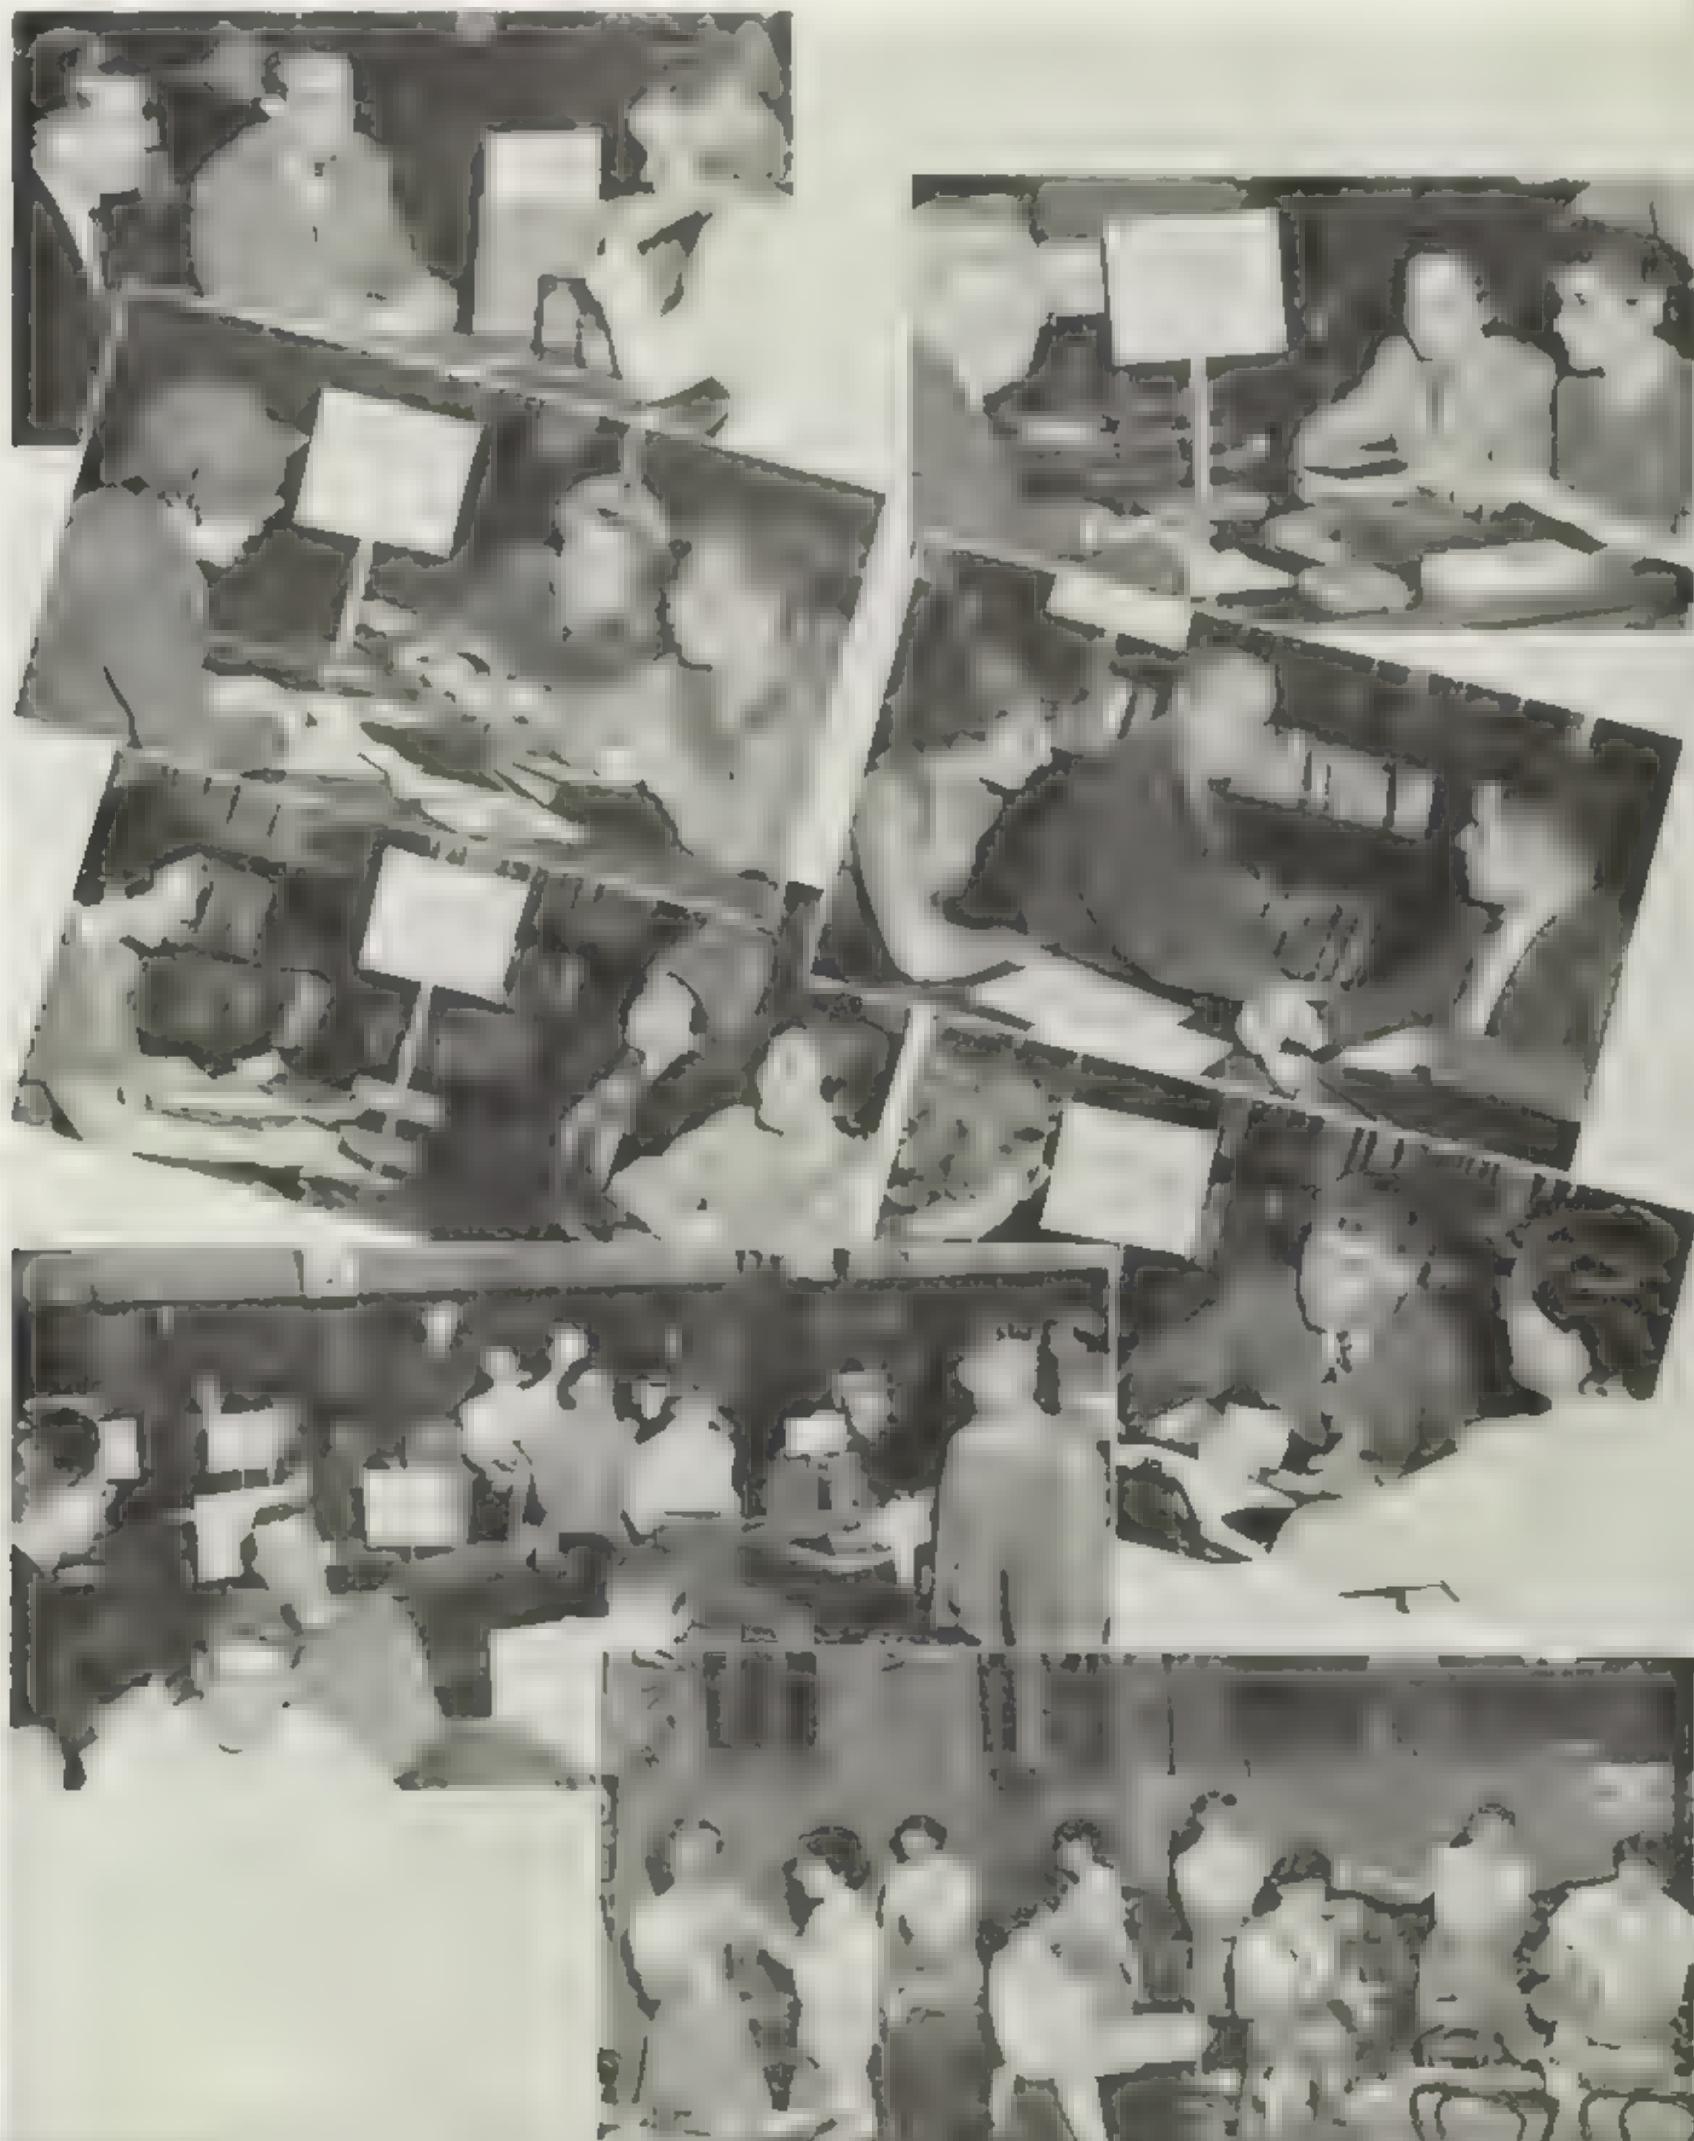

Choosing Future Alma Maters

As the need for education has grown, the importance of choosing the right career and college has grown with it. College Day was established to satisfy these needs. This year the representatives arrived on October 25th. The session opened with an assembly to which the parents of the seniors had been invited. Dr. Willard Umbreit of De Pauw University gave the main address on "The Importance of Adequate Preparation for College." Following the assembly private interviews were held between the seniors and the advisers. It is hoped that in the future College Day will become one of the most important days at Lake View.

To Prepare for Life Ahead

Where should I go? What course should I follow? What college would benefit me most? In the pictures below you see these, and many other questions, being answered at the interviews. Many parents, too, were interested in the consultations.

Time was taken out in which the representatives enjoyed a delicious luncheon served by the 48 Senior Service Girls.

That Magic Night When Dreams Come True

Soft music, billowy gowns, and the mingled scent of perfume and corsages are the ingredients for a Senior Promenade. This year that fascinating recipe was followed on January 20th at the Sovereign Hotel. That evening of splendor and enchantment was one never to be paralleled in the lives of many of the students.

Time between dances
was occupied in excusing tatter and cool refreshments. The Prom reached its height with the Grand March followed by the presentation of an armful of red roses to Miss Leoch.

Our Last Get To-gether

This year on January 24th the Belmont Hotel was host to the winter graduating class, and offered an ideal setting for the occasion. A program of entertainment by the students and of farewells to the Faculty was presented, and a not-to-be forgotten time was enjoyed by the class members who took advantage of their last opportunity to "get together".

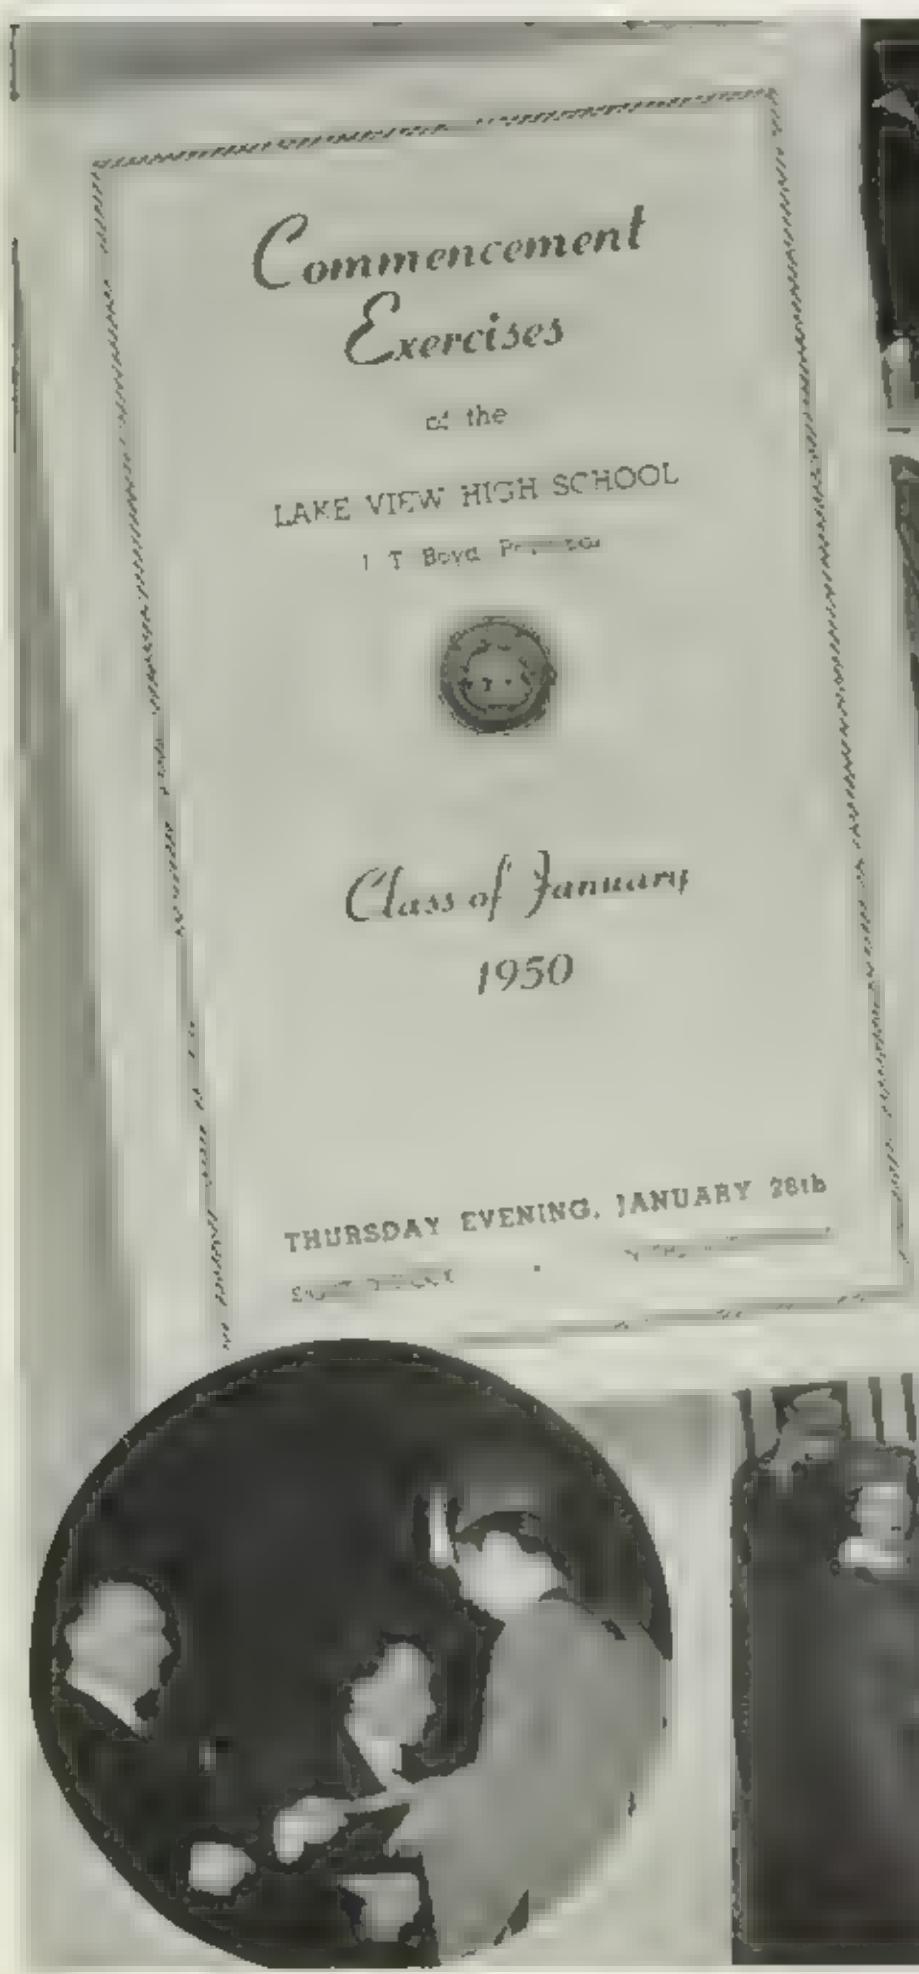

Before the Final Parting

The array of shiny frocks and pretty frills along with the well-groomed appearance of the boys served as a reminder that our high school days were over and that we were ready to venture into the world of adults who had entered a world of careers. The sadness of Mr. Uncheon was carried on by the realization that as we were making our final steps across Miss Leach's threshold.

We Look with Nostalgia on The Past

To the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" the Senior Class proceeded ceremoniously to their places in the auditorium for this, their last formal appearance as a group. However joyous their feelings as to their accomplishments, a note of sadness was, nevertheless, apparent. With the presentation of the diplomas and the conclusion of the program, the January 1950 Class was welcomed into the ranks of Lake View's Alumni.

But with Anticipation Toward The Future

Special Features of The June Class

People must dislike growing up, because as soon as they have a respectable number of years behind them what do they do? Have a baby contest! This happens to every Senior Class at Lake View. The most recent contest was divided into three categories, so that there were three winners. The picture in the top left-hand corner is Patricia Garber, "Prettiest Baby"; in the right-hand corner is Donna Speck, winner of the title "Cutest Expression"; the third picture is Harriet Pehon, "Funniest Baby." The prizes were a baby bonnet, a rattle, and a trailer toy with bells, which the "lucky winners" had to wear for one day.

The picture in the lower right-hand corner is unusual, not because all of the twins are from the same school, but because they are in the same class, the Class of June, 1950. They are, seated from left to right, Amarillys and Marilyn Beck, Jean and Joan Fiedler, and Marolyn and Carolyn Prince. Standing are James and William Finnerty, and Ruth and Eva Phillip. Carlyne Skirrow has a twin brother, Gilbert, but since he is at St. John's Military Academy, they are not in the picture.

Say that we loved her —
Say she was kind.

MISS JANET D. JENKINSON

With the passing of Janet D. Jenkinson on March 17, 1950, Lake View lost a good friend and popular teacher.

Upon her graduation from Tuley High School as Valedictorian of her class, she attended Northwestern University and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Upon her graduation, she was offered a two-year fellowship for the further study of the classics, which she refused, as she was anxious to begin her teaching.

She came to Lake View as a teacher of Latin and English in 1921. For many semesters before her resignation in 1949 she had charge of the Senior Service Division.

Those who knew her, knew her quiet, unassuming dignity, her loyalty, and her wit. She was a Christian idealist who lived those ideals. She was reserved, but through her kindness and friendliness she found her niche, and thoroughly enjoyed her work, often doing much more than what was asked of her.

Lake View will remember this outstanding teacher as a sincere and fine person, beloved by all who knew her, and as one who had a lasting influence upon her students.

Lake View Extends Her Best Wishes

MR. THEODORE F. BAYER

Mr. Bayer, a teacher in the Chicago Public High Schools since 1924, transferred from Harrison to Lake View in the spring of 1946.

He was graduated from the University of Illinois and the Chicago Kent College of Law. He was admitted to the Illinois State Bar, and became a Professor of Law at the Chicago Kent College of Law in 1948.

While at Lake View, he taught Commercial Law, Civics, and History. He resigned in September of 1949 upon completion of his twenty-five years of service to become Director of Public Relations, and devote his full time as a teacher at Chicago Kent College of Law.

He was very well-liked by his students, who enjoyed his jovial personality and winning manner. Those of us who had the pleasure of knowing him as a friend and teacher sincerely hope that he will find great satisfaction in his chosen profession.

MISS EXELIA TREADO

Miss Treado, one of the finest teachers ever to serve Lake View, spent seventeen happy years here.

Miss Treado received her training at Northern State Normal in Michigan, and later attended Chicago Normal where she majored in French, English, and Mathematics.

In the minds of her fellow teachers and her students she remains one of the most capable and commanding teachers that we have had in recent years. She knew her subjects and taught them well.

She resigned in January of 1950 to become Mrs. Edward Blair. We extend our very best wishes to her.

MISS HELEN BINA

Miss Bina, a graduate of Lake View, returned here to teach in the Physical Education Department in 1941. As a popular and well-liked teacher, we were sorry to see her transfer last September, to the Manley Vocational School.

MISS ALICE PRENDERGAST

Miss Prendergast transferred to Taft High School in February, 1950. She came to Lake View in 1934 as a teacher in the Music Department. She was respected and well-liked by her students, and we know that she will inspire admiration wherever she goes.

MRS. ELEANOR H. HOLTZMAN

Mrs. Holtzman retired in September, 1949, after having been nurse and matron for ten years.

She was conscientious in her duties; business-like, and dignified in her manner; and endeavored to give her best in her contacts with Lake View students. We sincerely hope that she will be happy in her new-found leisure.

A FRESH START

There's nothing more inspiring

than a fresh start.

The challenge of a new assignment, whether it be higher education or a job, brings in its wake a spirit of enthusiasm, an extra spurt of energy that is not unlike the effect of the crank on an old Model T.

But jump in quickly, while the motor's running . . . it's so apt to "go dead."

Congratulations, Class of 1950, and Best Wishes from

A NOTE OF THANKS

The Faculty of Lake View High School of Lake View High School are grateful to the Board of Education, the City of Chicago,
Mr. William Monroe, State Auditor, Mr. A.
T. Thompson, State Senator, Mr. John Avery,
Chairman of the Board of Education, the State Auditor, State Senator, Mr. George
O'Brien, and the many business men of Lake View, for their interest in our school and their generous contributions. We would like to express our thanks to the Lake View Service Center, which supplies materials for the equipment of students in Lake View. The faculty of Lake View is highly pleased and deeply appreciated.

THE FACULTY OF LAKE VIEW

PHOTOGRAPHY at its Best

That's what you get at MARSHALL STUDIOS. Photographs that bring out your best features and your most engaging poses and lines.

Do you want pictures of your wedding or a family party, or a big social event? Do you want Kodachrome (color photography)?

MARSHALL STUDIOS expert photographers will take them for you right at the place where the event occurs the church the home or wherever. Just phone or drop in and make the necessary arrangements. We will do the rest and DO IT BEST.
